AGNEW RESIGNS OFFICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resigned abruptly from office Wednesday and pleaded no contest to a charge of Federal income tax evasion. A judge sentenced him to a $10,000 fine and three years' probation.

President Nixon, expressing "a sense of deep personal loss" over the stunning development, met with Democratic congressional leaders at the White House to discuss "procedural questions" on the selection of a successor.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate majority leader, and House Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma, who is the President's immediate successor in the absence of a vice president, left the White House without meeting newsmen.

Agnew's resignation was part of an agreement struck by his attorneys with the Justice Department that allowed him to plead nolo contendere — no contest — to a 1967 tax fraud charge and have all other allegations facing him dropped.

Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, appearing with Agnew in the federal court in Baltimore, declared that the corruption investigation involving the vice president had "established a pattern of substantial cash payments" to him by Maryland state contractors when he was Baltimore county executive, governor and as vice president.

These payments continued from the early 1960s into 1971, and one engineer doing business with the state made payoffs up to and including last December, Richardson said.

Although the Justice Department agreed to drop the charges of bribery, extortion and conspiracy that Agnew also faced, these were detailed in a 40-page document released through the court. Agnew, while not contesting the tax evasion charge, denied all the others.

The thunderbolt disclosure of the resignation, the second by a vice president in U.S. history, was almost casually revealed by a staff secretary here as Agnew himself was making a surprise appearance in the Baltimore court.

Reading from a paper held in trembling hands, the 55-year-old vice president told U.S. District Court Judge Walter E. Hoffman that his decision to quit and plead no contest to the felony charge "rests on my firm belief that the public interest requires swift disposition of the problems which are facing me."

He said his lawyers had advised him that a legal battle over the allegations against him could last for years and the attending publicity would divert public attention from other problems, "to the country's detriment."

Agnew's decision came unexpectedly after he had sought for the last several weeks to end widespread press speculation that he would quit.

Agnew admitted Wednesday to receiving payments in 1967 which were not reported on his income tax and also that he was aware of payments made to others. But he denied that any payments had ever influenced his execution of the public trust as Baltimore county executive, governor or as vice president.

The actual charge against him contained in an information filed by the Justice Department, was that he failed to account for some $13,551.47 in federal taxes for the year 1967.

In that year, the information said, he reported income of $26,099 and taxes of $6,416 when in fact his income had been $55,599 owing $19,967.47 in taxes.

As Agnew appeared in court, a letter was delivered to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who under the law receives formal resignations of nationally elected officials. It read:

"Dear Mr. Secretary: I hereby resign the office of vice president of the United States, effective immediately. Sincerely, Spiro T. Agnew."

Similar letters were dispatched to President Nixon, and Democratic and Republican leaders of the House and Senate.

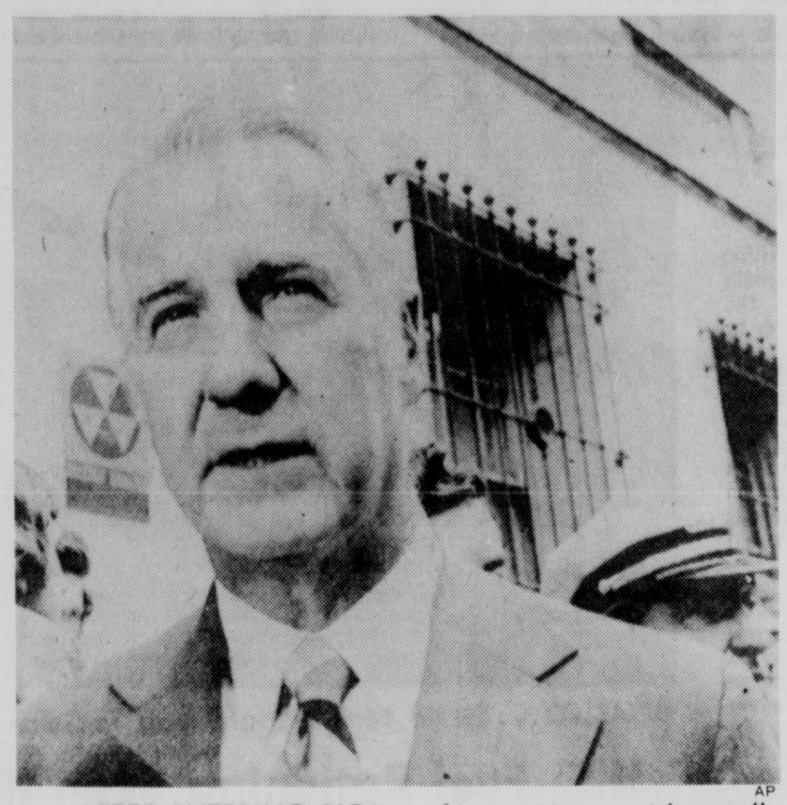
The news of the resignation reached the House floor during a roll call and created five minutes of confusion. House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., who in the absence of vice president is next in line to succeed as president, walked quickly to the floor, declining comment to reporters.

Within minutes, extra capitol policemen and Secret Service agents were stationed outside Albert's office door.

Nixon, on receipt of Agnew's letter via his chief aide, Alexander M. Haig Jr., immediately drafted a reply at his desk in the Oval Office, where Agnew had informed Nixon of his decision in a secret, 40-minute meeting on Tuesday night.

In his reply, addressed to "Dear Ted," Nixon said he was "deeply saddened by this whole course of events," and described Agnew as a "valued associate."

"The most difficult decisions are often those that are the most personal, and I know your decision to resign as vice president has been as difficult as any facing a man in public life could be," he told Agnew.



AP

AFTER ENTERING PLEA . . . former vice president talks with newsmen outside Baltimore courthouse.

Since Agnew's involvement in the federal probe was first disclosed in early August there have been persistent reports that Nixon wanted him to quit and had tried to force him out with pressure applied by White House aides through the news media.

The White House has denied this, however, and a spokesman said on Wednesday that Nixon "played no direct role in the decision." It was, a spokesman said, "a personal decision that only the vice president could make."

In the Baltimore courtroom, Richardson stated that the investigation of kickbacks "establishes a pattern of substantial cash payments to the defendant during the period when he served as governor of Maryland in return for engineering contracts with the state of Maryland."

He said payments by a leading unidentified figure in one large company started in the early 1960s and continued into 1971.

Richardson, who two weeks ago ordered the evidence against Agnew to be submitted to the Baltimore grand jury, outlined the plea bargaining which took place between the Justice Department and Agnew's own lawyers, and said that he felt leniency in Agnew's case was justified.

He asked Hoffman, in passing sentence, to consider Agnew's service as vice president and various other official or ceremonial capacities, as the nation's second highest elected official.

Agnew, his face drawn and hands unsteady, read his own statement before Hoffman and stood flanked by his attorney as one of them, Jay H. Topkis, formally entered the plea of nolo contendere — no contest.

Hoffman read a statement in which he said he considered Agnew's plea as "the full equivalent of a plea of guilty," and noted that such pleas often are accepted in tax cases.

Terming it "a most serious charge," he said it has been his practice in cases involving lawyers, tax accountants or businessmen, to impose fines and two to five months of actual imprisonment as a deterrent.

"But for the strong recommendation of the attorney general in this case I would be inclined to follow the same procedure," Hoffman said. "However, I am persuaded that the national interests in this case are so great and so compelling — all as described by the chief law enforcement officer of the United States — that the ends of justice would be better served by making an exception to the general rule."

He then passed the sentence of a $10,000 fine and three years of unsupervised probation. The fine must be paid within 30 days, the judge told Agnew.

Waving to bystanders outside the downtown courthouse, Agnew drove away to join other members of his family at a Baltimore funeral home where his half-brother, W. Roy Pollard, 65, who died on Monday was lying in state. Agnew is expected to attend the funeral on Thursday.

Agnew's resignation was the first such occurrence since John C. Calhoun quit on Dec. 28, 1832, to become a South Carolina senator. Seven vice presidents have died in office.

Charges Filed In Alleged Kidnap Hoax

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Blackmail charges were filed in Lancaster County Court Wednesday against four Lincoln youths in connection with an alleged kidnap hoax.

A high-grade misdemeanor charge of accessory after the fact was filed against a fifth youth.

The charges resulted from telephone calls received Monday by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Weaver Jr. demanding $25,000 ransom for the release of their 16-year-old son, Matt, against whom a blackmail complaint was also filed in Juvenile Court due to the youth's age.

Blackmail charges were filed against Ronald Sheldon, 19, David Sheldon, 17, Debra Truvey, 19, and Alan Scott Snyder, 19.

Preliminary hearings for the four were set Nov. 20 and bonds were set at $2,000 by Lancaster County Judge Ralph Slocum.

Preliminary hearing was set Nov. 27 for Jody Neal, 18, charged with being an accessory after the fact in connection with the kidnaping hoax and she was released on $1,000 bond.

The blackmail charge, which carries a maximum pnealty of from one to three years in prison or a $200 to $500 fine, specifically charged the youths with "unlawfully by threats, intimidation, coercion, extortion or conspiracy seeking to obtain money from Ed Weaver Jr."

Maximum penalty for the high-grade misdemeanor accessory charge is up to two years in jail.

Miss Turvey and Snyder requested court-appointed, counsel and the public defender's office was appointed to represent them. Representing the Sheldon brothers was A. James McArthur while Miss Neal was represented by Michael Brown.

According to Chief Deputy County Attorney Ronald Lahners, a formal complaint was filed in Juvenile Court against young Weaver and hearing was set for Oct. 15.

The maximum penalty which could be imposed against young Weaver on the blackmail complaint is placement in the Boys' Training School at Kearney until he reaches the age of 21.

The six youths were located and arrested Tuesday by FBI agents and Lancaster County Sheriff's deputies at the Sheldon home in Southeast Lincoln. The Sheldon youths' parents are vacationing in New York, according to Sheriff Merle Karnopp.

Flood Waters Trouble Southeastern Nebraska

Swollen southeastern Nebraska rivers and creeks Wednesday stranded one Jefferson County farm couple and caused the evacuation of several Saline and Thayer County residents.

Moderate to heavy showers and thunderstorms continued to fall late Wednesday in the already soggy area.

Jefferson County Sheriff Clyde Kellie at Fairbury reported Mr. and Mrs. Roland Endorf, living in the northwest part of the county on the north fork of the Little Sandy Creek notified him their farmstead, including the house, was surrounded by water. The Endorf children were unable to return home from school and were staying in Daykin.

Sheriff Kellie said Sandy Creek was as high as he had ever seen it while the Little Blue River, expected to crest Thursday morning at Fairbury at about six feet over flood stage, was running higher than it had for several months.

High water from the Little Sandy was also surrounding all but the house at the Gene Thomas farm, Sheriff Kellie added.

In Saline County, several rural residents along Swan Creek in the Swanton area were evacuated by boat Wednesday, according to a spokesman in the county sheriff's office at Wilber.

By late Wednesday afternoon Swan Creek had receded about six feet, however.

Although DeWitt was in no trouble Wednesday, observers said that Saline County community might get some high water Thursday as Swan Creek, Turkey Creek and the Big Blue River all drain into the area.

Thayer County Sheriff Jim Johnson at Hebron said the Harley Joe family living in the south part of Alexandria was evacuated Wednesday when flood waters from the Big Sandy Creek threatened their home.

An unofficial 5.50 inches of rain deluged Alexandria, while upstream along the Big Sandy Davenport received an estimated 5 inches.

In the Republican River basin, heavy rains of two to over three inches produced bankful stages on the main stem at Superior.

According to the State Department of Roads, a 10-mile stretch of Highway 5 from Deshler north to Highway 4 was closed due to Little Blue high water.

Other closed roads included Highway 76 south from Alexandria to Highway 136, and Spur 76D to Swanton.

For a time Wednesday, U.S. 77 at Princeton, south of Lincoln, was closed to traffic due to water from a drainage ditch spilling onto the highway.

The Adams County sheriff's office at Hastings said an earlier report of over nine inches of rainfall in the Juanita area was false. A check there revealed rainfall in the area amounted to only between one and two inches.

Meanwhile, residents of Alda in Hall County were cleaning up debris caused by Tuesday night's tornado which left about 40 persons homeless in that community.

The tornado at Alda hit a motel and mobile home court, injuring five persons and causing extensive damage to more than 30 trailers. A number of frame houses in the area also sustained damage, officials said.

William Halte Jr., 23, was the only one hospitalized with injuries at Alda. He suffered a shoulder separation when the tornado struck his mobile home. He was reported in satsifactory condition Wednesday.

"We had no warning whatsoever," according to Glenn Powers, member of the Alda Village Board. "I was standing in front of the high school when it hit. I tried to dial the emergency number 911 on the telephone, but the phones were out. It happened just that quick."

It was the second time in recent months that damaging winds struck the Alda area. The other storm occurred July 3.

Golan Heights Said Retaken

By The Associated Press

Premier Golda Meir said Wednesday Israeli forces recaptured the Golan Heights and were pushing the Egyptian army back along the Suez Canal. She said the Soviet Union was pouring in arms to help the Arabs.

Egypt and Syria had no immediate response to the claims, and accounts from newsmen on the Suez front said Egyptian forces were continuing to move across the canal.

"Today I can say the heights are in our hands . . .," Mrs. Meir said. "The settlers, driven away by earlier bombardments, are returning to their settlements . . . . Our forces are standing very close to the canal and here, too, we are pushing back the enemy."

In other developments:

— Baghdad radio said the Arab country of Iraq had thrown its troops and air force, which includes long-range bombers, into the five-day-old war.

— Israeli jets carried the air war into Syria for the second consecutive day.

— King Hussein said Jordan had mobilized its reserves.

Jordan fought with Syria and Egypt against Israel in the 1967 war, but so far has not committed forces to the current fighting.

Regarding the Soviet arms, Mrs. Meir said the Soviet Union had been "incessantly" arming the Arab states since 1967, and "even at this moment we have reason for saying that the weapons, to Syria especially, are flowing all the time."

Some Pentagon officials in Washington also said the Soviet Union was restocking the Arab arsenals.

President Nixon said the United States was "trying its best" to mediate the "very dangerous situation" in the Middle East.

Britain's Foreign Ministry said Wednesday that Britain was banning arms sales to the Middle East. A Pentagon spokesman declined comment when asked about U.S. aid to Israel, but there was no indication that the United States was cutting back its arms sales to Tel Aviv.

Syria and Egypt countered the Israeli claims of victory in skies, and reported shooting down a total of 24 Israeli warplanes. Israel claimed it shot down 20 Syrian and Egyptian fighter planes.

Neither side gave its own losses.

Israel had claimed once before that its forces had pushed the Egyptians back to the canal and had cleared the Golan Heights of Syrian forces, but on Tuesday an Israeli general conceded that Israel's tactical advantage was not that bright.

"We have moved to the offensive almost everywhere," Mrs. Meir said Wednesday in a televised address. "There is absoultely no doubt about the result of the war. We will win it."

In part of her speech, Mrs. Meir indicated Israel's goal may be to advance beyond the cease-fire lines that existed before the war broke out Saturday.

"We want to hit them, force them back across the lines, and push them beyond the lines" to prevent any renewed Arab attack, she said. The premier did not elaborate.

"The war could be a long one," said Maj. Gen. Samuel Gonen, Israeli commander on the Sinai front.

Tel Aviv and Damascus reported savage air clashes over the Golan Heights battleground and during the Israeli raids on targets in the Syrian heartland. Each side claimed the other suffered heavy losses.

The Iraqi announcement that its air and land forces were fighting on both fronts made it the third major Arab country to enter the fight against the Israelis in the fourth broad Arab-Israeli conflict since 1948.

Other Arab countries have pledged support to Egypt and Syria and some have sent token contingents.

The Beirut newspaper An Nahar reported Iraq has committed 18,000 troops and 100 tanks along with an undisclosed amount of air power to back Syria on the Golan front and Egypt in the Sinai battle.

The Israeli military command claimed its raiding jets inflicted "considerable damage" on the French-built Damascus airport and also blasted Syrian naval headquarters on the Mediterranean and other strategic targets in Syria and Egypt.

But Syria claimed its air defenses rose to meet the four jets attacking over Damascus and blasted three of them out of the sky before they could get near the airport. The fourth Israeli jet fled with Syrian MIGs in hot pursuit and was downed before it could reach safety in Israeli skies, Damascus said.

Security Men Grab Gunmen

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An armed man took over a Mexican jetliner on the ground Wednesday, but security men captured him shortly after he made his move, authorities said.

Manuel Basterra, chief of the Mexico City Airport police force, said the gunman was taken to his office.

A spokesman for Mexicana Airlines said the gunman had threatened to start shooting the 68 passengers aboard the plane if anyone approached the Boeing 727, which was scheduled for a domestic flight from Mexico City to Monterrey.

Four stewardesses also were on the plane, but the pilot and copilot had not yet boarded, the spokesman said.

Shots were heard inside the aircraft before Basterra announced the gunman's capture.

New York Times News Summary

'I Hereby Resign The Office Of Vice President'

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — "I hereby resign the office of Vice President of the United States, effective immediately." With that terse statement delivered to the secretary of state at 1:05 p.m. CDT, Spiro T. Agnew became the second vice president in the nation's history to resign from office. His resignation, part of a deal to avoid prosecution and possible imprisonment on a number of federal charges, was followed by his conviction on a single count of income tax evasion, for which he was fined $10,000 and sentenced to three years on probation. In a statement read to the court in Baltimore, Agnew, who pleaded on contest to the tax charge, denied any wrongdoing and said he was resigning in the national interest. (More on Page 1.)

Soviet Airlift Indicated

Washington — Administration officials said there were indications that the Soviet Union was airlifting military equipment to resupply Egyptian and Syrian forces in their fight against Israel. The officials refused to say whether the United States was contemplating an emergency resupply of Israeli forces, but the official State Department spokesman said that if the Soviets were in fact engaged in a massive resupply effort, this would put a "new face" on the Middle East conflict. (More on Page 2.)

Egyptian Movements Confirmed

In the Sinai Peninsula — Western corresponsdents reporting from the battle zone east of the Suez Canal confirmed that Egyptian soldiers and material continued to cross into the Sinai, and that the Egyptians have taken up positions approximately 10 miles east of the canal. The Egyptian command said their aircraft had attacked Israeli headquarters and military and administrative installations along the northern Sinai coast.

Israelis Suspend Counterattack

Tel Aviv — Israeli forces have apparently suspended, temporarily, their counterattack against Egyptian positions along the Suez Canal. In the Golan Heights, Premier Golda Meir announced, the "Syrian enemy is past the cease-fire line and we are driving him back." An authoritative source said that the fighting on both fronts was minimal and there were no major offensives. Israeli aircraft were reported to have made raids into the Nile Delta area of Egypt and several positions in Syria. (More on Page 1.)

Dirty Tricks By Demos Explained

Washington — The Senate Watergate Committee heard its first evidence of what Republican witnesses called political dirty tricks by supporters of Democratic presidential candidates. Fred Taugher, who was the Southern California campaign coordinator for Senator McGovern last fall, said that he had allowed persons planning an antiwar demonstration against President Nixon to use McGovern telephones for two days to round up support for the protest. U.S. Says Russia Flying Supplies To Egypt, Syria

©The New York Times

World News

Washington — Administration officials said Wednesday there were indications that the Soviet Union was airlifting military equipment to resupply the forces of Egypt and Syria.

At the State Department, Robert J. McCloskey, who is serving temporarily as the department's spokesman, said that if the Soviets in fact were engaged in a massive resupply effort, this would put a "new face" on the Middle East conflict.

On a background basis which precluded their identification, other officials, apparently acting upon instructions laid down by the State Department, readily volunteered information about the reported Soviet airlift.

The fact that officials who until Wednesday had been extremely reluctant to discuss any details of the Middle East war were now willing to talk openly about the soviet resupply effort prompted immediate speculation that the administration might be laying the groundwork for resupplying the forces of Israel.

Diplomatic sources reported that Israel already had approached the United States about speeding up the delivery of military equipment promised Israel before the outbreak of hostilities last Saturday. This would include accelerated deliveries of F4 Phantom jet fighters, which Israel has been losing at a high rate to Soviet-built antiaircraft missiles used by the Egyptian and Syrian forces.

Within administration circles there is a growing realization that the Israeli forces, which were equipped to fight a short, decisive war, cannot fight a protracted war of attrition against the numerically superior Arab forces without the assurance of some resupply by the U.S.

According to diplomatic and military sources, Israel's concern is not so much an immediate replacement of lost military equipment as assurances it can count on American resupply if it commits its present forces and runs into unexpected losses.

The exact nature of the Soviet airlift remains unclear to U.S. officials. All that is known, according to officials, is that in the past day or so, an unusually large number of Soviet transports have been observed flying into airports in Egypt and Syria. The presumption is that the planes are carrying military equipment to replace that expended or lost by the Arab forces.

The airlift, officials reported, was being staged primarily out of Hungary, with the planes flying down over the Mediterranean. Diplomatic sources reported that about 30 planes had been observed landing at Syrian airports since Tuesday afternoon. The number going to Egyptian airports was not disclosed.

U.S. Fuel Rationing Seen If Mideast War Long

Washington (UPI) — Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar said Wednesday that if the Arab-Israeli war is prolonged, fuel rationing in the United States could result.

Brinegar told a news conference that drawn-out fighting in the Middle East could froce the administration to abandon its current fuel allocation program and go to an all-out rationing plan, presumably such as was used in World War II.

"Even if a few tanker loads of fuel get held up" by the war, Brinegar said, it could cause a serious shortage of fuel.

"The longer the war goes on, the sooner the United States will have to go to a rationing program."

He did not go into details of any rationing program to be proposed, but it likely is to be patterned after the priority-use plan instituted during World War II.

Under the fuel allocation program as now drafted, home heating oil, gasoline, jet fuel and other petroleum products will be allocated to ensure fair distribution, but there is no provision for priority usage.

Brinegar said the key to the problem was Saudi Arabia, the major U.S. supplier in the Mideast, which so far has made no move to reduce its sales to the United States.

ACS Reverses Chemical Stand

Washington (UPI) — The American Chemical Society (ACS) announced it no longer approves President Nixon's decision to exclude herbicides, napalm and tear gas from a general ban on chemical and biological warfare.

The society's weekly news magazine, Chemical & Engineering News, said the change in policy was adopted by the ACS' 450-member council last Aug. 28 and reported in a letter to Sen. J. William Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

U.S.-Made Weapons Loaded On Israeli 707

Virginia Beach, Va. (AP) — A Boeing 707 with Israeli markings on its tail section was loaded with missiles and bombs at Oceana Naval Air Station Wednesday, the Norfolk Ledger-Star reported.

While the arms — Sparrow and Sidewinder air to air missiles — were being put aboard, sailors covered the Israeli marks with paper and masking tape, then painted the covering, the newspaper quoted witnesses as saying.

Earlier Wednesday, a C141 aircraft from the U.S. Military Airlift Command landed at Oceana and taxied to a point near the Israeli plane. The U.S. plane pulled alongside the aircraft and began off-loading bombs directly into it, the Ledger-Star said.

The Sparrow and Sidewinder missiles are used aboard F4 Phantom II jets, Israel's chief fighter planes, which are manufactured in the United States.

John Marshall Sentenced In Stennis Case

Washington (UPI) — John Marshall, 22, was sentenced to 15 years in a federal youth corrections center Wednesday for his part in the robbery and shooting of Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., last January.

U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy handed down the sentence under the youth corrections act which provides that a prisoner may be released whenever youth corrections officials feel he is rehabilitated.

Marshall entered a so-called Alford plea last spring, just five days before his 22nd birthday, in order to be considered under the act. The act applies only to persons who have not reached their 22nd birthday. Marshall's 19-year-old brother, Tyrone, entered a similar plea Monday for his part in the shooting.

The Alford plea, based on a 1971 Supreme Court ruling, permits a defendant to continue to maintain his innocence while asserting that the weight of government evidence against him is too strong.

Nixon Spy On McGovern's Staff

. . . McMinoway Says He Drove Delegate, 2 'Ladies' To Hotel

Washington (AP) — A former Nixon campaign spy testified Wednesday that he worked his way through the campaigns of three 1972 Democratic presidential contenders and right into Sen. George McGovern's penthouse suite at the party's Miami convention.

Michael W. McMinoway, 26, a private detective from Louisville, Ky., told the Senate Watergate committee that he rose from volunteer ranks to McGovern's convention security staff.

He was present with McGovern when the candidate watched on television as his delegates regained crucial, contested votes from the California delegation, McMinoway said.

McMinoway was code-named Sedan Chair 2 by officials of President Nixon's re-election committee and the White House.

He testified that while working for McGovern in Miami he provided transportation for a delegate and two women who "engaged in immoral activity" with the delegate in the back seat of a car. He said he drove them from McGovern's Doral Hotel headquarters to the Playboy Plaza Hotel not far away.

Questioned about the incident, McMinoway said he wasn't certain whether the women were prostitutes or where they came from.

He testified he was acting on orders of an upper-echelon McGovern staff member whose name he could not recall. He did not identify the delegate.

McMinoway said he first saw the delegate when the man appeared on the Doral Hotel's 17th floor, where McGovern and his top aides stayed. He said that the man asked to see campaign manager Gary Hart, that Hart asked to have the man ushered in and that Hart later said, "Send him on back."

When the delegate emerged from Hart's quarters later, a McGovern staffer told McMinoway to bring a staff car around to the front of the hotel and wait for the delegate, McMinoway said.

He said when he pulled up with the car, he found the delegate with two women.

McMinoway testified that he was certain the two women were of "low moral standards."

Republican committee counsel Fred Thompson questioned McMinoway in some detail about the incident.

"Did anything happen to make you believe they were not 'ladies,' but 'women?' "

"Yes sir," McMinoway said.

"I'm not going to go into that," said Thompson, raising snickers from the standing-room-only audience in the hearing room.

Asked about McMinoway, a McGovern aide said that the senator did not recognize his name. Aides planned to show him a picture of the witness.

McMinoway said he wasn't sure during the five months he worked for the Nixon campaign exactly who his employers were.

But he said after the Watergate break-in June 17, 1972, he asked and received assurances there was no connection between the burglary and the "group of concerned citizens" who hired him. He said by that time he already had arranged, while working in McGovern's California campaign, to go to the Miami convention. He said he went through with the convention trip on condition it was his last assignment.

McMinoway denied that he ever lied or misrepresented himself to the candidates for whom he worked and on whom he spied. He said none of them checked out his background or made it necessary for him to lie.

He said he generally used his real name and anyone could have found that he was a registered Republican. A call to Louisville officials or newspapers would have shown he had been active in Republican politics, he said.

Ervin Subpoenaed To Submit Evidence In Conspiracy Trial Of Mitchell, Stans

Washington (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee said Wednesday he has been served with subpoenas to give evidence in the Vesco case trial of two former Cabinet members, and that he will attempt to comply.

"I just don't believe in suppressing evidence," said Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C.

He said subpoenas were issued to him at the request of lawyers for former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans.

They are accused of perjury, conspiracy and obstruction of justice in connection with a secret $200,000 cash contribution to President Nixon's re-election campaign from fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco.

Ervin said he would introduce a resolution in the Senate seeking its approval for him to comply with the three subpoenas.

He said the subpoenas seek any documents the Watergate committee has relating to Vesco, all information on the matter given to the committee by former Nixon campaign treasurer Hugh W. Sloan Jr., by ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III and by the Securities and Exchange Commission, and all names and addresses of persons the committee knows to have given $1,000 or more to any presidential candidate last year.

Ervin was asked by newsmen if he considered the subpoenas to be a fishing expedition.

"They look like a very broad net that they are casting on the evidentiary waters, and it's capable of catching tadpoles as well as whales and things that are relevant as well as things that are irrelevant," Ervin said.

Dennis Banks Pleads Innocent

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP)— American Indian Movement leader Dennis Banks has pleaded innocent to 10 felony counts stemming from a Feb. 6 riot at Custer.

The 36-year-old Rapid City resident pleaded innocent Tuesday to two counts of riot, three counts of arson, two counts of burglary, one count of injury to a public building, one count of assault with a dangerous weapon without intent to kill and one count of conspiracy to commit arson.

He was released on $15,000 bond, part of which was posted by the Iowa Annual Conference of Methodist Churches.

Curtis, Hruska On Losing Side

Washington (AP) — Republican Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska of Nebraska were on the losing side Tuesday as the Senate rejected 62-29 an amendment in the strip mining bill that sites be restored to their original condition.

Wives' Task: 'Comfort Men'

ROME (AP) — The Dalai Lama, exiled leader of Tibet's Buddhists, says women are entitled to equal rights, but he feels one of the tasks of wives is to make men comfortable at home."

The 38-year-old Buddhist, who met Pope Paul VI in the first stop of a six-week tour of nine Western European nations, said of Western morals: "It is time to put the brakes on excessive immorality."

He pointed to Tibet's convents for Buddhist nuns being alongside monasteries for monks, as evidence of equal rights for the sexes there.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By KEVIN P. PHILLIPS

(Note: William O. Dobler, The Star's editor, is in Mexico City for several days attending a meeting of newsmen. Today's column is by news writer Kevin P. Phillips.)

WASHINGTON — When the U.S. Supreme Court takes up, as it soon must, the question of school busing, each justice ought to be required to read — 10 times if necessary — an incredibly good socio-legal analysis published in the Indiana University Law Journal for May, 1973.

I have just read it myself for the first time, and it is a bomb. It ought to be excerpted and reprinted wherever common sense still prevails in this land, because it shatters the whole legal concept of busing, using exactly the criteria promulgated by liberals in support of the idea,

One column is not enough to do justice to Jeffrey J. Leech's article, but I shall try. His theme is simple, that busing has slowly developed as the judiciary's method of carrying out the basic sociology of the original 1954 school desegregation case, namely that separate education generated inferiority in black students and otherwise impaired their educational and mental development. Ultimately, in the 1971 Swann (Charlotte, N.C.) case, the Supreme Court approved busing as a legitimate tool to "desegregate" and thereby ameliorate the educational and psychological burdens of black children.

Leech's sociological research emphasizes three categories of busing impact:

(1) Achievement levels: In 10 cities, six show mixed or inconclusive results (Sacramento, Hartford, Rochester, Buffalo, Evanston, White Plains) and four show either losses or no significant gains (Ann Arbor, Berkeley, Boston, Riverside). "In every city studied, busing failed to reduce the gap between black and white achievement. In fact, most cities reported that the achievement gap had grown even larger after busing. Scholars who have reviewed the evidence, including Armor, Bell, Edmonds, Glazier and St. John, have concluded that busing has little if any effect on the academic achievement of either black or white children.

(2) Psychological Effects: "In summary, researchers have found that busing for racial integration significantly lowered black students' educational aspirations in Ann Arbor and Boston, the only two cities which studied this problem. At the same time, the academic self-concepts of black students were significantly lowered in Boston and Evanston, raised in Ann Arbor (males) and not significantly altered in Ann Arbor (females), New Haven and Riverside. Viewing this evidence in its most favorable light, busing for racial integration would appear to lower black students' educational aspirations and have no consistent effect on their academic self-concepts . . ."

(3) Improved Race Relations: "In summary, the busing studies available demonstrate rather conclusively that busing for racial integration has produced little or no improvement in race relations. In fact, the results appear to be to the contrary . . . In no city did busing appear to increase interracial contact or better racial understanding."

There is still some reason for hope. Leech cites the Mapp Case (Chattanooga, Tenn.) as an example where the U.S. Appeals Court weighed the new sociological evidence and found that "induced busing" would have an adverse effect on educational achievements and race relations.

This is consistent with the Swann Case, which left the door open to anti-busing findings where busing would "significantly impinge on the educational process." Therein lies the hope: that the nine justices of the High Court will read the wisdom of Mapp and the wisdom of Leech and, having done so, will use new sociology to redress the injury of the old.

Critical Time Ahead

What an inner struggle it must have been for Vice President Agnew in his decision to retreat from a defiant posture of standing firm in his job while proving his innocence.

In all likelihood, Agnew could have held on to the vice presidency until his term expired, had personal considerations won out.

But it was Agnew's belief that the public interest was the most important that led to his no-contest plea in federal court Wednesday and his resignation from office. The decision to make short work of his legal problems must weigh in his favor when history assesses the man.

Whether Agnew was guilty or innocent of all the criminal acts attributed to him by rumor over the last few months is not fodder for particularly relevant debate at this time. The vice president helped to decide the question in the forum of public opinion by his plea of no contest to income tax evasion charges.

Nor is it necessary for the public to dwell on the fact that Agnew himself knew of the possible consequences of his actions while governor of Maryland before he accepted two nominations for the second highest office in the land and that President Nixon was aware of Agnew's legal problems at the time he picked him as his running mate the second time. That kind of cynicism and arrogance is deserving of comment later.

But for now, the American government and the political system face a crisis of confidence. The Nixon administration is in shambles. Already its ranks have been decimated by Watergate and the President faces critical legal problems as yet unresolved. Now the vice president leaves office having been found guilty of a criminal charge.

The President and the Congress must rise above this sordid state of affairs in finding a replacement for Agnew. Narrow partisan considerations should have no part in it. If either the President or the Congress or both compound the crisis by dabbling in political strategems, the American people will be betrayed. The President and the Congress must come to an agreement on a new vice president whom the people can trust and respect.

Vietnam Forgotten?

To people who didn't suffer direct consequences of it, the Vietnam War seems like a part of the distant past. Although U.S. troops were still in Vietnam at this time last year and American airmen were bombing in the north at Christmastime and the cease-fire agreement — the first one — was signed only ten months ago, Americans generally have transferred their interest away from Southeast Asia to fix on current issues of the day which have more of a direct bearing on their daily lives.

People have a way of forgetting, and for those Americans not directly touched by the war, Vietnam is largely forgotten.

But there is a young woman in Omaha, representative of hundreds of other wives and mothers, who has not given up in her struggle to uncover the fate of her husband, listed as missing-in-action.

There is Lt. William Calley, whose sentence of 20 years at hard labor for ordering the deaths of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai in 1968 is now under final review.

There is Richard Dean Bucklin, a conscientious objector who spent four and one-half years AWOL from the Army in Sweden and who recently turned himself in to U.S. authorities claiming that he is willing to go to prison to show his love for America. Bucklin deserted from a U.S. post in Germany, not in Vietnam, but he represents thousands of other draft resisters and deserters who rebelled against the military because of Vietnam.

There are the court cases still pending against war protesters and people still serving time because of their part in the anti-war movement.

And of course there are those who suffered in Vietnam and lived and the families of those who died there.

News about Vietnam — not about the current round of fighting taking place or about stalled negotiations, but about what took place when Americans were there in force — will be with us now and again for a long time.

The uncertainty over the MIAs, the amnesty issue, the questions as to why chains of command broke down and why tragic blunders were covered up, all remain unresolved.

Included with the more profound unresolved questions of the direction of American foreign policy and presidential war-making, they all add up to the fact that the forgotten war has left a burdensome legacy.

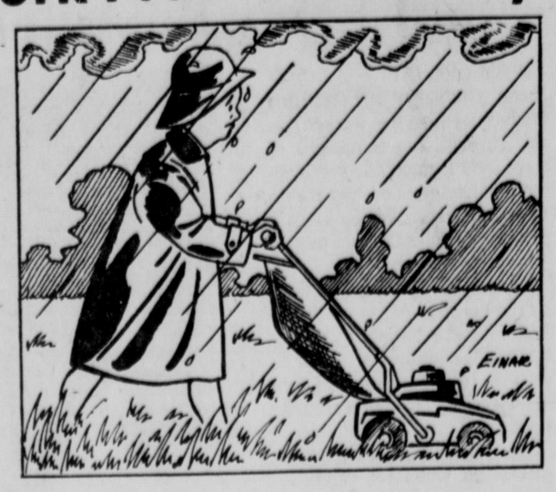
Patchwork Prairie Country



"And the Beat Goes On," is a song title I am reminded of as I look out of my window. Not the beat of musical notes but the beat of raindrops. Perhaps by the time this is in print, the weather may have cleared but we have thought so for so many days that we would not venture any ideas about the weather.

The Farmer is eager to get the soybeans harvested since there are reports the seeds are beginning to sprout in the pods. It will take at least a week of sunny, preferably windy weather to dry the fields so a combine can go through without getting stuck in our fields. Water still stands in some of them.

Some reports of corn and milo damage also creep into the conversation when farmers gather to discuss their farming problems. I say "problems" for it seems the last two years have been filled with them . . . getting them in . . . getting them harvested.

The brilliant golden leaves of the ash trees have dropped, making our lane look as if King Midas himself had lost some of his golden nuggets as he strolled through the dooryard.

There are several small dips in our lane that hold water for several days after a rain. The leaves cluster about these dips while the water shines as clear as glass chips.

I told The Farmer one of these mornings we would awaken to find a thin coating of ice on the water and autumn would soon have winter breathing down its neck.

Yesterday The Farmer put his machinery into the machine shed. That task always writes The End to another season. First the drill was cleaned and pulled into the farthest corner. The cultivator was next and the planter last.

While the weather has not permitted any field harvest, The Farmer has been putting a roller chain on the combine. The machine shed affords a nice dry place in which to work . . . and listen to the beat of rain upon the tin roof.

Unless the weather is cold and severe, most farmers find it difficult to sit around the house. They are glad to have some tasks to work at while waiting for the weather to clear.

One morning the sun peeked through and I truly believed the weather man when he predicted clearing skies. Since I like to have a bright sunny day in which to shampoo the runs, I lunged into moving furniture.

I mixed the solution, vacuumed the rugs thoroughly and began the work in good humor. I had started and was well into the work when the sky leaded over and within minutes it was as dark and dreary as the day before. By evening a fine mist was falling — but guess what? Every day since has been bleak and mist-shrouded.

Now I am waiting for another day of sunshine so I can hang the curtains on the line. A portion of the line is shaded so the drapes will not fade. I do like a billowy wind to shake the dust from the drapes. Some homemakers put their drapes into the dryer and let them tumble about for a few minutes to clean them. To each his own.

I have a beautiful bouquet of marigolds in the house. They are the large giant size and are so beautiful, especially one variety of color. It is a bright lemony color with a hint of green in it. When one looks at it, he is not certain whether there is green in the coloring or not for it is so brilliant in color.

How the grass does grow since the cool weather and moisture have been in ample supply. I suppose if for no other reason, I am always happy to see a hard freeze come for then I know mowing grass will soon come to an end.

Of course that task will be replaced by raking of the yard to remove the old grass and fallen leaves. Come to think of it, there just isn't any easy way to get out of work.

Nixon Papers

Lincoln, Neb.

I read with particular interest in the Oct. 4 Star, the Times' article concerning the information published by the Providence (R.I.) Journal-Bulletin that President and Mrs. Nixon's 1970 and 1971 income tax returns showed tax liabilities of $792.81 and $878.03, respectively.

Where or how these figures were obtained is a mystery to me and therefore are extremely questionable. Nevertheless, the deduction claimed by the President for the donation of the vice-presidential papers to the National Archives with an appraised value of around $600,000 has had wide publicity and therefore enough credibility to gain the attention and challenge of Tax Analysts and Advocates, a capable adversary.

The Times says the contention by this group is that the contribution was not timely made, i.e. prior to July 31, 1969.

In my view, the issue should be that Nixon never had title to such papers — so they were never his property to give away. Any value they had belonged to the government.

Presidential etiquette might permit those elected to the office the privilege of designating the donee of presidential or vice-presidential papers, but the facts are that they belong to the government and therefore the citizenry, and not any individual.

From experience, I know that when any government people retire, they can take with them only their personal file they might have kept of their private personnel actions, such as changes in pay, grade, awards, etc. All correspondence and other papers regarding matters they have been involved in, including operating manuals, etc., are left with the office and retained or destroyed.

The president or vice president are no less employes and therefore any paper, correspondence, decision, etc. produced, received, sent, answered and yes, even taped, is the property of the employer, the United States government, and not the elected official.

The inference has been made elsewhere that Nixon requested and received a private ruling from the national office of the IRS both as to the legality of the deduction and approval of the claimed appraised value of the papers. This to me should be explored. Something is extremely rotten in Copenhagen.

Israeli Expansion

Lincoln, Neb.

In the 1967 war, Israel captured from Arab states a territory greater in size than her own. Ever since that war, she has been defying all norms of international law and has been engaged in the process of eventual annexation of the occupied territories. Such an annexation is not only morally wrong, but, as U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim put it, violates the principle of territorial integrity.

It is therefore not surprising that the Arab states have resorted to war as the means of recovering their lost territories. I wholeheartedly support the Arab states in their just cause.

Israel is a nation based on religion. This is contrary to the modern European political concepts of democracy and secularism, as the principles on which nations should conduct their politics. Israel's policy of expansionism is interlinked with her self-imposed need for settling the Jewish immigrants from other nations.

Although I agree that Israel has a right to exist and to conduct her national affairs on religious grounds, she has absolutely no right to bully neighboring Arab states and to annex their territories in order to settle her Jewish immigrants.

Board Of Directors

Alexandria, Neb.

The Founding Fathers were highly practical men. They knew that if the president should die or be removed from office, it would be weeks or even months before a new president could be chosen and put in office. They had to have a replacement pitcher sitting on the bench year after year, though sitting on the bench was the worst possible preparation for active playing.

We are not so handicapped, since we have instant communication and nearly instant transportation compared to their horse and sail. But even so, we cannot conduct an instant national election. However, we can do ever so much better.

We can learn from seeing what pitiless competition in the private area has shown to be the best structure for humans to use when they need to act in concert. It is the corporate form. It is the form wherein the individuals concerned choose a board of directors who in turn choose the persons who form the playing team.

We must choose a board of directors to conduct the nation's business, having among their duties and powers that of hiring and firing any or all executive officers.

Credit For Subs

Lincoln, Neb.

Humm & Company definitely subdued the Minnesota Gophers in Saturday's game. He and Anderson tied a record in the pass and touchdown department, which was fine.

The two were in the game 40 minutes and the score was 28-7.

Runty and subs were in the game 20 minutes, half as long, and their score was 20-0.

Military Influence Crucial In Pending Turk Election

WASHINGTON — Citizens of Turkey have ample reason to feel grateful this month. Two years of martial law have just ended, and general parliamentary elections will be held on Oct. 14. Then, on Oct. 29, Turks will observe the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Turkish Republic by Kemal Ataturk. To celebrate the occasion, a new bridge across the Bosporus — the first land link between European and Asiatic Turkey — will be opened.

Eight parties are contesting the election, but two of them tower over all the others. The conservative Justice party is still headed by Suleyman Demirel, whose government was toppled by the military in 1971 after an outbreak of terrorism and student unrest. Demirel now says: "Whether we will be in power or not is secondary. That the system should work is the important thing." Translation: Demirel thinks he's a shoo-in.

But maybe not. Bulent Ecevit, head of the social democratic Republican People's party, has attracted larger than expected crowds during his campaign swings. The trouble is that his party is split by ideological quarrels and currently holds only 114 of the 634 seats in parliament.

The six smaller parties run the gamut from the Salvation party, which appeals to Moslem extremists, to the National Movement, which is described as neo-Nazi.

The attitude of the military could prove crucial in the end. They deposed Demirel once, and they may not hesitate to oust him a second time if circumstances warrant. Ecevit's Republican People's party runs the risk of being proscribed by the military for having moved too far to the left.

Left, right, or center, the next government of Turkey will face formidable economic and social problems. Inflation is pushing up prices at the rate of 20% a year, and around one-fifth of the work force is unemployed. Failure to alleviate these problems could result in a new military takeover.

Turkey's present difficulties pale in comparison with those it faced a half-century ago. Defeated and dismembered in World War I, the country sank into resignation and despair. Greek forces occupied Izmir and later launched a drive into Anatolia, hoping to win additional territory.

Ataturk saved the day. During the war, he had been responsible for Turkey's only significant military victory. In 1915 the units under his command repulsed the massive Allied invasion of Gallipoli.

In June, 1921, the Turkish armies under Ataturk halted the attacking Greek forces, and by August of the following year victory was complete. Ataturk thereupon proceeded to recreate Turkey as a modern state in the Western paattern. The sultanate and caliphate were abolished, and a republic proclaimed. It was an astonishingly swift transformation for a country that had lived under Ottoman despotism for centuries. More important, the transformation was durable. The general elections of Oct. 14 constitute proof.

The Hidden Crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The latest Middle East crisis between Israel and the Arab states has produced an even more important crisis between the United States and the Soviet Union, and between the United States and the communist government of China.

In those big televised meetings between Nixon, Brezhnev, Mao Tse-Tung and Chou En-Lai in Moscow and Peking, the leaders of the major powers agreed to support universal principles, which would lead to a new order in the world, but when they all gathered around here at the United Nations on the East River during the latest Middle East crisis, they sang a different tune.

At the end of May, 1972, after the Nixon-Brezhnev meeting in the Kremlin, they said they were "guided by their obligations under the charter of the United Nations, that they were "aware of the need to make every effort to remove the threat of war and to create conditions which promote the reduction of tensions. . . "

"The U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R.," they said, "have a special responsibility . . . to do everything in their power so that conflicts or situations will not arise which would increase international tensions. . . "

This was big news when President Nixon went to Moscow. It was also big news when Nixon and Premier Chou En-Lai of China signed the Shanghai Declaration of Feb. 27, 1972, declaring that "both wish to reduce the danger of international conflict . . . neither is prepared to negotiate on behalf of any third party . . ."

Yet when the latest crisis developed in the Middle East, all these noble promises and intentions seem to have been forgotten. Though President Nixon appealed to Chairman Brezhnev to cooperate in getting a cease-fire along the Suez, and Secretary of State Kissinger urged Huang Hua of China here to cooperate in a big-power effort to stop the fighting, the plain fact is that Washington got no cooperation.

Huang Hua said it was "perfectly just" for the Arab countries to "rise in resistance to the invading enemies of their own sacred territories." Yakov Malik of the Soviet Union not only supported the military activities of Egypt and Syria against Israel, but criticized the United Nations Security Council for even raising the question at the U.N.

Meanwhile — and this is the main point — the information coming here to the United Nations was that the Soviet Union, while committed to reduce tensions under the Nixon-Brezhnev agreement, was actually urging Algeria, Lebanon and particularly the king of Jordan to get into the war against Israel.

This is not a casual or frivolous report. The fact is that while the United States has been talking to Moscow and Peking about reducing tensions, while Kissinger has been talking to Soviet Ambassador Dobrynin in Washington about cooperating for peace, cutting military forces on both sides of the Iron Curtain, and working together for peace in the Middle East, the Soviets have been increasing their military budget in Central Europe and meanwhile urging Algeria, Lebanon and Jordan to get into the Middle Eastern war.

The war in the Middle East looks much more serious now than it did in the beginning. The casualties are much higher than is generally believed. The provocations much greater.

The hope of producing common sense about these tragic possibilities is not very good. The conflict is either going to be solved on the battlefield, or by an agreement among the major nations, and this raises the fundamental question about those promises by Nixon and Brezhnev in Moscow and Nixon and Chou in Peking.

They were all very eloquent and noble then, very conscious of the special responsibilities of the so-called "great powers."

The major nations have agreed to the principle that they have a special responsibility to keep the peace, and to work together to prevent others from making war, but in the present crisis between Israel and the Arab states, they have not composed the problem but actually made it worse.

New Procedure Ready For Filling Vacancy

©The New York Times

Washington — The problem now facing President Nixon and Congress — how to fill a vice presidental vacancy — has been a recurrent one in United States history; but for the first time, a procedure exists for filling this vacancy.

This procedure is outlined — and only outlined, leaving complex questions to be answered by Congress — in the 25th Amendment to the Constitution, which became law with its ratification by the required 38 states in February, 1967, almost two years after its approval by Congress in the summer of 1965.

The amendment's provisions are designed to deal with both the matter of presidential disability and of a possible "vacancy in the office of the vice president," a situation that has existed for a total of 37 years as the result of death, succession to the presidency or, on one previous occasion, a vice president's resignation.

The sections of the amendment considered to be crucial were those that closely defined presidential disability and the procedures to be followed in the event of presidential incapacity to fulfill the duties of the office.

The original constitutional clause, Clause 6 of Article II, did not define "disability" clearly, nor did it establish how it would be judged or by whom; it called on Congress to decide on the successor to the presidency if both the president and the vice president died, resigned or were disabled.

Later legislation established, and changed, the order of succession, but did not consider the possibility that the vice presidency might become vacant.

President Eisenhower's precarious health, followed by a new recognition of the importance of a vice president as successor — prompted in large part by the 1963 assassination of President Kennedy — was the spur to congressional action on the 25th amendment.

The major difficulty in drawing up the amendment was a two-month hassle between the Senate and House conferees on the question of whether to set a time limit for Congress to challenge a presidential assertion that his "inability" no longer existed.

"Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the vice president, the president shall nominate a vice president who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

Just how Congress would go about this was unsaid. Among the unresolved questions are: whether the vote should be taken in joint session or separately in each house of Congress, and in what order the House and Senate would act on the vice presidential nomination; and whether there should be confirmation hearings by a joint "select" committee — one set up for a specific purpose — or by standing committees such as the Rules or Judiciary Committees. Congressional leaders have thus far refused to talk publicly about such questions, although they are known to have discussed them among themselves.

Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., who is a member of the House Rules Committee, made a suggestion that the committee has adopted: that the select committee on committees draw up possible rules for House action on vice presidential nominations.

Beyond the disagreements as to procedure — some congressmen are known to favor a select committee, while others believe that a special committee is not needed — lie the sticky questions of politics. Many Democrats, including Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss, are known to be concerned about the possibility of voting on the confirmation of a new vice president who might become the Republican presidential candidate in 1976.

Man From Bug Tussle Is Next In Succession

Oklahoma City (AP) — Until a successor is sworn in for Vice President Spiro Agnew, a man from the unlikely place of Bug Tussle, Okla., is the proverbial heartbeat from the presidency.

When Agnew resigned Wednesday, House Speaker Carl Albert automatically became next in succession to President Nixon. Within minutes, extra Capitol policemen were assigned to guard duty outside Albert's office in Washington.

Shortly afterward, Secret Service agents were assigned to guard him.

Under the new presidential succession amendment, the speaker of the House is next in line after the vice president. And, with no vice president at the moment, that means Albert is the No. 2 man in the national government.

The succession amendment provides for the President to name a successor to Agnew as vice president. His choice must be confirmed by both houses of Congress.

Elected In 1946

Albert, a 65-year-old Democrat from the southeast "Little Dixie" section of Oklahoma, was elected to the House in 1946. A tiny 5-foot-4, his slogan in that first campaign was "From a Cabin in the Cotton to Congress."

The humble origin was authentic, but Albert has roamed far from his mostly rural home area.

He won a Phi Beta Kappa key at the University of Oklahoma and a Rhodes Scholarship provided two years of study at Oxford University in England, where he earned bachelor of arts and bachelor of law degrees.

Speaker Carl Albert

He also studied for a time at the University of Madrid before returning to McAlester, Okla., and opening a law practice.

Early Orator

Albert first made use of his voice in high school when he won the state prep oratorical championships in 1926 and 1927. He captured the national intercollegiate oratorical championship and a $1,500 prize in 1928.

The son of a coal miner and tenant farmer, Albert used the money to continue his education at the university after finishing at a one-room schoolhouse across the fields from the Albert farm.

Albert was just getting his hometown law practice going when it was interrupted by World War II. He joined the Army in June 1941, five months before Pearl Harbor, was transfered to the Air Force and served in the Pacific. He was discharged as a lieutenant colonel.

He was beginning to reestablish his law career when, on the night before the filing deadline, he learned that the incumbent congressman from Oklahoma's 3rd District was not going to seek re-election.

Won Narrowly

Albert rushed to Oklahoma City to file, then threw himself into the Democratic Primary, which he won over three other candidates by 359 votes. He won the general election that fall and has been re-elected every two years since.

In his first campaign for the House, Albert expressed his political philosophy this way: "Listen to the people, sure. Hear their arguments on all questions and weigh all sides. But have convictions of your own and act on them, even when they don't jibe with the popular wishes. You'll have to stand or fall on that basis."

In following that philosophy, he prompted a congressional colleague to remark at one point, "He is the only man who could survive in that district with his liberal voting record. He can vote any way he wants to and they have such faith in his integrity and good sense they figure he had a good reason to do it, even if they don't agree."

A protege of the late House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, Albert rose rapidly to prominence in Congress. He became Democratic whip in 1954 and in 1961 succeded Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts as majority floor leader.

It was McCormack whom Albert succeeded again, this time as speaker when the Massachusetts congressman retired in 1970.

One Of Last Appearances As Vice President

Agnew Statement

Washington (AP) — Here is the written version of the statement by Spiro T. Agnew to the court in Balitmore:

"My decision to resign and enter a plea of nolo contendere rests on my firm belief that the public interest requires swift disposition of the problems which are facing me. I am advised that a full legal defense of the probable charges against me could consume several years. I am concerned that intense media interest in the case would distract public attention from important national problems — to the country's detriment.

"I am aware that witnesses are prepared to testify that I and my agents received payments from consulting engineers doing business with the state of Maryland during the period I was governor. With the exception of the admission that follows, I deny the assertions of illegal acts on my part made by the government witnesses.

"I admit that I did receive payments during the year 1967 which were not expended for political purposes, and that, therefore, these payments were income taxable to me in that year and that I so knew. I further acknowledge that contracts were awarded by state agencies in 1967 and other years to those who made such paymnets, and that I was aware of such awards.

"I am aware that government witnesses are prepared to testify that preferential treatment was accorded to the paying companies pursuant to an understanding wityh me when I was the governor.

"I stress, however, that no contracts were awarded to contractors who were not competent to perform the work and in most instances state contracts were awarded without any arrangement for the payment of money by the contractor.

"I deny that the payments in any way influenced my official actions. I am confident, moreover, that testimony presented in my behalf would make it clear that I at no time conducted my official duties as county executive or governor of Maryland in a manner harmful to the interests of the county or state, or my duties as vice president of the United States in a manner harmful to the nation, and, further assert that my acceptance of contributions was part of a long-established pattern of political fundraising in the state. At no time have I enriched myself at the expense of the public trust.

"In all the circumstances, I have concluded that protracted proceedings before the grand jury, the Congress and the courts, with the speculation and controversy surrounding them, would seriously prejudice the national interest.

"These, briefly stated, are the reasons I am entering a plea of nolo contendere to the charge that I did receive payments in 1967 which I failed to report for the purposes of income taxation."

Texts Of Letters Released

Washington (AP) — Following are the texts of Spiro T. Agnew's formal letter of resignation as vice president — sent to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger under statutory procedures: Agnew's advisory letter of his resignation to President Nixon, and Nixon's reply to Agnew:

The Honorable Henry A. Kissinger
The Secretary of State
Washington, D.C. 20520
Dear Mr. Secretary:

I hereby resign the office of Vice President of the United States, effective immediately.

Sincerely,
-s- Spiro T. Agnew

Oct. 10, 1973
Dear Mr. President:

As you are aware, the accusations against me cannot be resolved without a long, divisive and debilitating struggle in the Congress and in the courts. I have concluded that, painful as it is to me and to my family, it is in the best interest of the nation that I relinquish the vice presidency.

Accordingly, I have today resigned the office of vice president of the United States.

It has been a privilege to serve with you. May I express to the American People, through you, my deep gratitude for their confidence in twice electing me to be vice president.

Sincerely,
-s- Spiro T. Agnew

Oct. 10, 1973
Dear Ted:

The most difficult decisions are often those that are the most personal, and I know your decision to resign as vice president has been as difficult as any facing a man in public life could be. Your departure from the administration leaves me with a great sense of personal loss. You have been a valued associate throughout these nearly five years that we have served together. However, I respect your decision, and I also respect the concern for the national interest that led you to conclude that a resolution of the matter in this way, rather than through an extended battle in the courts and the congress, was advisable in order to prevent a protracted period of national division and uncertainty.

As Vice President, you have addressed the great issues of our times with courage and candor. Your strong patriotism, and your profound dedication to the welfare of the nation, have been an inspiration to all who have served with you as well as to millions of others throughout the country.

I have been deeply saddened by this whole course of events, and I hope that you and your family will be sustained in the days ahead by a well-justified pride in all that you have contributed to the nation by your years of service as vice president.

Sincerely,
Richard Nixon

Nebraska Political Leaders Express Concern For Reaction

Nebraska political leaders expressed shock at the news of the vice president's resignation Wednesday and several added expressions of concern about the effect on public opinion and the political system.

Rep. Charles Thone, in a statement issued by his Washington office, said he was "deeply worried about how the attitudes of citizens, particularly young people, may be affected by all of the recent revelations and accusations of wrongdoing."

Said the First District congressman: "At this point it is most important to stress that the vast majority of those who hold or seek high public office are people of outstanding character . . . both Democrats and Republicans."

'Most Concerned'

"I am most concerned about what effect this whole affair will have on the future of, and the confidence in, the American political system," Gov. J. J. Exon told the Associated Press.

"I was surprised to learn of the vice president's sudden resignation today, since from the very beginning he had maintained innocence and had pledged to carry out his rights in court," Exon said. He termed it one of the great tragedies that has come to the American system of government.

"I felt like I'd been punched in the stomach," Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh said. He also expressed concern that the public would cast an unduly cynical eye toward politicians and politics at all levels of government.

Rep. John Y. McCollister said his reaction "is one of sadness for the vice president and his family and for the nation."

"I am glad Mr. Agnew decided to resign at this time and that the nation was spared a long drawn out trial that surely would have resulted," McCollister said.

Favors Ford

McCollister said he would favor House Minority Leader Gerald Ford as a successor to Agnew, and that there is quite a bit of talk in the House about Ford."

Rep. Dave Martin said he approved of Agnew's action.

"I note in his statement he said he was doing it in the best interests of our country," Martin said. "This is of tremendous importance because a long case in court could create not only a great deal of uncertainty, but hesitation in the operation of the government, and the executive branch would lose a great deal of its power."

Martin said he would not speculate on an Agnew successor, but noted that "The House Democratic leadership has said it will not vote to confirm the President's nominee for the office unless the nominee agrees not to be a candidate for president in 1976."

Barrett 'Shocked'

State Republican Chairman William Barrett said he was "surprised and shocked" at Agnew's action.

"I am personally disappointed that it came to a resignation because I think that Agnew is basically a fighter," Barrett said.

Nebraska's Republican National Committeeman, Dick Herman, said he was "very surprised and very disappointed" by Agnew's announcement.

Herman said he believed President Nixon would look to three men as possible replacements for Agnew. They would include GOP Chairman George Bush, California Gov. Ronald Reagan, or New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Sen. Roman Hruska said in a statement issued by his office that he was "saddened and shocked to learn of Vice President Agnew's resignation" but said he could not comment on the merit of the action because he had not yet read the vice president's statements.

On Committee

Hruska noted that Sen. Mansfield (D-Mont.) appointed him earlier in the day as "one of a small committee to confer on the subject and make recommendations to the Senate."

Don Shasteen, a spokesman for Sen. Carl T. Curtis, issued a statement which he said was his own but which "I believe reflects the feelings of Senator Curtis."

"It comes as a complete surprise," Shasteen said. "The Vice President had told his own staff previously that he would hang in there and fight this thing out.

"He obviously had a change of mind."

Curtis was in Argentina Wednesday for the inauguration of President Juan Peron.

Cooperation Asked

"My concern right now," said state Democratic Chairman Hess Dyas, "is that there be a lot of cooperation between the President and the Congress in an orderly procedure to name a new vice president." He declined to speculate on a possible successor.

Dyas said the "initial shock really came some weeks ago, when it because apparent how serious the situation was becoming."

The harshest statement came from State Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha.

Chambers said "I think it is time that the people realize that people who do as Agnew has done should be called gangsters and criminals. He should certainly do some time in prison.

"His crime was worse than the crime committed by Jimmie Hoffa and he went to prison."

Hoffa was a former chief of the Teamsters Union.

NOW Urges Nixon To Nominate Woman

New York (UPI) — The National Organization of Women (NOW) Wednesday urged President Nixon to nominate a woman for vice president.

"At this unprecedented time in U.S. history, it is time for another unprecedented event," said Karen Decrow, NOW spokeswoman.

Resignation Causes Shock

By The Associated Press

The news of Spiro T. Agnew's resignation as vice president brought expressions of shock and disbelief from Republican and Democratic politicians around the country on Wednesday. Some praised Agnew, saying he had placed the interests of the country above personal concerns.

William McLaughlin, the Michigan GOP chairman, said, "You're putting me on," when told the news. "That's quite a surprise."

Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, a Republican, said Agnew's resignation was "a tragic development for the country and certainly for the vice president." He said he regretted that the resignation "was necessary," and added: "It is now clearly in the best interest of the country to quickly resolve the matter as the vice president is doing."

'Painful' Decision

Gov. Marvin Mandel, a Democrat who was Agnew's successor as governor of Maryland, said Agnew's decision to resign "must have been a painful one, but a decision that took courage and determination. He placed the stability of the nation, the integrity of the vice presidency and the security of the nation . . . above a political future. . ."

Thomas Potter, chairman of the West Virginia GOP, said his first reaction was "one of great disappointment and surprise in view of the statements Agnew made earlier proclaiming his innocence . . ."

Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton, a Republican, said only "I'm sorry."

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, a Republican who has been mentioned as a possible successor to Agnew, said the resignation was "a great personal tragedy and tragedy for the nation."

Minnesota Republican Chairman Robert Brown said, "I'm taken completely by surprise." And Hank Fisher, the Minnesota Democratic - Farmer - Labor chairman, commented: "That was really a startling thing. I really don't know what to say."

'Quick Resolution'

Louisiana GOP chairman James Boyce said he met in Washington on Wednesday with representatives from the office of national GOP chairman George Bush. "We were told there would be a quick resolution of the problem," he said, "but there was no indication that resignation would be the solution."

New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, now a Democrat but a former Republican who seconded Agnew's nomination as vice president at the 1968 GOP convention, said, "This is a sad story and a setback for the entire United States."

Ross Davis, the chairman of the GOP in the state of Washington, commented: "I'm a little bit stunned, just from the impact of having a vice president resign."

The Washington Democratic chairman, Neale Chaney, said: "I think it is very unfortunate. I had found myself feeling rather sorry for the guy because I thought he was being tried by the public before standing trial."

'Hit Between Eyes'

Gov. Dan Evans of Washington, chairman of the National Governors Conference, said the news of Agnew's resignation and of his plea of no contest to one court of income tax evasion "was like getting hit between the eyes."

Evans, chairman of the National Governor's conference, said he hoped President Nixon moved quickly to chose a successor to "avoid the penalty of too much speculation."

Former Missouri Gov. Warren Hearnes, a Democrat, said Agnew had called him Wednesday morning with the news. "He said he didn't think the country could stand this type of turmoil," said Hearnes, who had been named a trustee of the vice president's legal defense fund. The former governor said the news "saddened" him. Asked his feelings about his brief conversation with Agnew Wednesday morning, Hearnes said, "It was like someone in the family had died."

'In Best Interest'

Mayor Frank L. Rizzo of Philadelphia, a Democrat who supported the Nixon-Agnew ticket in 1972, said Agnew's action "has spared the nation from the turmoil of lengthy litigation and is in the best interest of our country."

Herb Klein, former White House director of communications, and now vice president for corporate relations of Metromedia, Inc., in Los Angeles, said, "I believe . . . that in avoiding the agony of a long legal action the vice president leaves a challenge to the government, including Congress, to move ahead with the business of the country."

Klein said he would suggest the names of possible successors to Nixon, but he declined to say who he would recommend.

Clifford L. Jones, Pennsylvania GOP chairman, said he felt it was "Too early to speculate on his Agnew's successor." He said he was "extremely surprised" by the resignation but believed that Agnew "is doing what he feels is best for the country."

The office of Gov. Daniel Walker of Illinois, a Democrat, issued a statement saying: "This is a sad episode in our history, but one that has to be faced. The greatness of this action is that it can face such events."

Shock First Reaction

By The Associated Press

Americans responded with shock and surprise Wednesday as work of Spiro T. Agnew's resignation as vice president swept the country with brushfire speed.

"I think they made him a scapegoat," said Lorraine Sfarti, a New York housewife. "People forgot all the good that he has done as a governor and a vice president."

The owner of a Brooklyn gas station, Ci Kommor, said: "It tends to indicate that all those allegations against him must be true. They must have gone into depth in investigating him and really developed evidence."

For many, first word came with the sudden interruption of the nationwide broadcast of the National League baseball playoff game.

NBC broke into its coverage of the game between the New York Mets and Cincinnati Reds, first to announce the resignation and again to relay word of Agnew's no contest plea to one income tax evasion charge at the federal courthouse in Baltimore.

At Charley O's, a New York restaurant, patrons booed when the sign "special news report" appeared on the television screen. The boos were followed by cheers when the report was made.

A terse bulletin was flashed on the scoreboard at Shea Stadium in New York, site of the game. There was some scattered cheering.

Cesar Rivera, a 16-year-old student at Franklin K. Lane High School in New York, said he still believed Agnew was innocent of any wrongdoing.

"I don't think Agnew is involved in anything that is wrong. I think he resigned because he's tired of trying to defend himself and he's fed up with his critics."

Question Is How Nixon Will Approach Choice

©The New York Times

By JAMES RESTON

Washington — For the 17th time in 184 years, the Republic is without a vice president, and the immediate question is how President Nixon will approach the choice of a person to succeed Spiro Agnew for the next three years and three months.

Eight times during these 184 years, a vice president has succeeded to the presidency in mid-term, and with another war in progress in the Mideast, the administration weakend by scandals and resignations, and the people troubled by internal dissension and inflation, Nixon's decision comes at a particularly solemn moment in the history of the country.

Nixon seems to be facing his decision in a cautious and responsible way.

He had said he had no "contingency plan" for replacing Agnew, and he has now committed himself to consult with other leaders of the nation before submitting his nomination to the House and Senate, both of which must confirm the nomination under the 25th Amendment by a majority vote.

Dilemma 2

Nevertheless, he is faced with a dilemma. It has been widely reported that he regards John Connally, former governor of Texas, former secretary of the Navy and former secretary of the Treasury, as the man best qualified to be president. But Connally is a controversial figure who has only recently joined the Republican Party, and his choice would not only split the Republicans but also infuriate many Democrats.

This is why his approach to the decision is so important, for while he must propose a qualified man, any attempt to select a probable candidate for the presidency in 1976, would give the new vice president a big advantage in the '76 election and lead to more political contention just when the country is looking for unity and calm.

The same problem arises with the nomination of either Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York or Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, for while the Democratic majority in Congress could scarecely reject either on merit, the nomination of the progressive Rockefeller would irritate the conservative Republicans, and the nomination of the conservative Reagan would annoy the progressive Republicans.

Accordingly, there has been considerable support here for selecting a capable caretaker vice president, who would avoid a bruising battle over confirmation, and commit himself not to be a candidate for the presidency in 1976.

Among those discussed regarding this approach to solving the problem are the former secretary of state and attorney general, William P. Rogers; a former senator from Kentucky, John Sherman-Cooper; a present White House aide, Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, and the present attorney general, Ellliot L. Richardson, as well as his deputy, William Ruckelshaus.

Guessing Game

Washington has been playing this guessing game for weeks, but was nevertheless stunned by the Agnew resignation and astonished to discover that last week's parlor gossip was suddenly an immediate decision of state.

In the interests of making a calm and orderly transition, it has even been suggested that the President might consider asking Chief Justice Warren Burger to resign from the court and standing for the vice presidency. Associate Justices Lewis Powell Jr. of Virginia, Harry A. Blackmun of Minnesota, and Potter Stewart of Ohio have also been mentioned, though their enthusiasm for giving up lifetime appointments on the court to act as temporary designated hitters for Agnew might be somewhat limited.

There is, however, strong opposition to this compromise "caretaker" idea. This city has gone through so many surprises and shocks in the last year that it has come to expect the worst.

During these past 12 months, it has elected one president by a landslide, only to find him a year later, not triumphant but despondent. Two former presidents, Harry S. Truman and Lyndon Johnson, have died in these last few months.

One war in Vietnam has ended, and just when the country was celebrating the first peace in a decade, another more dangerous war has started up in the oilfields at the crossroads of the continents. All this and a devalued dollar, soaring prices, Watergate, and finally a confession that last month's "damned lies" were this week's truth have shaken the capital and made verybody ask, what next?

Right Thing To Do

So there is also pressure on the President here now, not to assume the best after the worst is so apparent, or to concern himself with the short-range interests of compromise candidates who will calm things down, but to concentrate on choosing the best potential president available, on the theory that anything may happen and in the end, the best thing to do is the right thing to do.

It will be intersting to observe how the President deals with this philosophical question, with the conflicting advice he is now getting: to go for what he believes to be the "best," even if this provokes more battles and controversies he doesn't need, or to go for another compromise, which will calm things down.

In his "Dear Ted" letter, accepting the vice president's resignation, the President seemed to be almost apologetic.

He prasied the vice president's loyalty and courage, but Agnew had been caught for old sins long ago — not the new sins of political burglary, espionage, and sabotage, which are still before the courts. They didn't get him for big crimes like Cambodia or Watergate, which he didn't commit, but they got him on taxes, and the President, who has tax problems of his own, let him go as gracefully as he could.

Events In Saddle

So the interesting thing here now is what the President does with all this. Nothing has quite worked out as he thought. The element of accident has confounded him ever since his triumphant re-election last November. Events have really been in the saddle. They have reduced his popularity, destroyed his vice president, indicted some of the principal members of his Cabinet, forced the resignation of his old buddies on the White House staff, and now produced a new war in the most critical area of the world.

All this has not only startled but saddened Washington.

It was the assumption of this administration that it could produce peace, but now it has another war; that it could reach an accommodation with the Soviets and the Chinese about a new order in the world, but now the Soviets are saying pleasant things on the "hot line," but provoking Algeria and Jordan to destroy Israel.

Also, it was the assumption of this administration that it was the symbol of law and order, even that it could impose a new moral order on the Republic, but now it has been caught breaking the law, and the resignation of the vice president is not the end of the story.

A Chance

Still, with the resignation of Agnew, and the outbreak of war in the Middle East, there is a chance now to look at all these events and personal tragedies again. And this is what Washington is now watching for. It hasn't the vaguest idea of how Nixon will approach this new situation, so it waits, not really knowing him after all these years, and asks questions.

Will he use this latest crisis to compromise on the appointment of a new vice president? Will he compromise on the tapes? Or will he try, like Agnew, to "tough it out" until events bring one more surprising disaster?

Nobody around here knows the answer to these questions, but this was the talk of the town after Agnew's resignation, and the first clue is likely to come when the President decides how to pick Agnew's successor.

Who Will Succeed Agnew?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A lot of names are circulating as potential successors to Spiro T. Agnew as vice president but there are no firm bets on who might get the job.

Agnew's resignation, only the second in the nation's history and the first since passage of a constitutional amendment providing for selection of a successor, comes with absolutely no precedent for what kind of man President Nixon might nominate.

Republican National Chairman George Bush sent telegrams to the members of the Republican National Committee to seek their views on a successor to Agnew. An aide said the replies would be transmitted in strict confidence to the White House.

John Connally, the Texas Democrat turned Nixon Republican, has been frequently mentioned since Agnew's legal troubles first surfaced several weeks ago.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, a onetime Nixon rival who in recent years has moved closer to the President, is another leading possibility who top Republicans think might be interested in the post.

Reports that former Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton was flying to Washington stirred rumors that he might be asked to take the job. On arrival here, Scranton said he was in town for a meeting of the Carnegie commission and knew nothing about the resignation. However, his name has been in the speculation for some time.

The trouble with these names is that Congress which must approve the nominee, and some members particularly the Democrats, have said they don't want an interim vice president who might use the office as a spring board to the presidency in 1976.

Connally, 56, and Rockefeller, 65, are both considered prospects for the next Republican presidential nomination. Scranton sought the nomination in 1964 and the vice president's office could give him new political life.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., himself considered a prospect for the 1976 Democratic nomination, told reporters after Agnew quit that the new vice president should be someone who could unify the nation rather than set himself up for higher office.

Specifically, Jackson said, a Connally nomination "would not be a unifying force."

Agnew's action Wednesday, creating the first vice presidential vacancy since the 25th Amendment was ratified in 1967 to provide a new way to select a replacement, creates an unprecedented situation. Nixon has given no clue as to how he will proceed.

Some Republicans, noting that the original choice of Agnew in 1968 was a distinct surprise, caution that the President may again reach beyond the most obvious possibilities.

Some congressional sources, citing the fact that the nominee would have to win majorities from the Democratic-controlled House and Senate, say Nixon would do well to steer clear of 1976 politics.

"I don't think the Congress would want to usurp the role of the Republican National Convention of 1976 in choosing a vice president in 1973," one source said.

Republican senators interested in a 1976 race could be as uncomfortable in this situation as the Democrats. Senators such as Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., or Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., could be placed in an especially ticklish situation by being asked to vote on a potential rival.

One source cited former Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who has always had good relations with Congress, as a possible nonpolitical vice presidential choice. Rogers, 60, recently resigned to return to private law practice.

Other persons mentioned included Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, House Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the 1964 GOP presidential nominee.

Most lists of vice presidential prospects also include Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, Atty. Gen. Elliot R. Richardson, presidential aide and former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Baker and Bush.

Omaha Rally Last Nebraska Visit

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

One year ago this week Spiro Agnew made his last public appearance in Nebraska, urging a highly supportive Republican rally in Omaha to help re-elect President Nixon in November.

The resigned vice president enjoyed extraordinarily enthusiastic support from Nebraska Republican leaders, and had established obvious rapport with the Republican man-on-the-street in the Cornhusker State.

After his election in 1968, he came to Nebraska in each of the succeeding election years to help raise campaign funds.

And he gathered outspoken endorsements from Nebraska GOP leaders in 1972 when it appeared — for a time — that he might be replaced as Nixon's running mate.

More important for what once seemed to be a bright political future was the support of voters, who strongly endorsed the Nixon-Agnew ticket in both 1968 and 1972.

Said What We Thought

Agnew articulated "what all of us have thought for so long and haven't been able to say," former Gov. Norbert Tiemann once suggested. That was in 1970 at Agnew's last public appearance in Lincoln.

More than 2,500 persons had paid $50 a plate to hear a rousing partisan address by the vice president at a fund-raising dinner at Pershing Auditorium for Tiemann.

Outside, the arena was half-ringed by 800 peace demonstrators who marched and sang and handed out anti-war pamphlets.

Inside, Agnew won robust cheers from the clearly delighted Republican audience for a scornful attack on Democratic politicians and policies.

A month later, the vice president was back in Nebraska for a briefing at Strategic Air Command headquarters near Omaha.

Money Raised

In 1972, Agnew returned to perform more political chores — raising money for the GOP at a $100-a-plate dinner in Omaha in June.

Nixon's decision to keep Agnew as his running mate came a month later and was greeted with enthusiasm by Nebraska Republican leaders.

"He is a definite political asset to President Nixon," Sen. Roman Hruska declared.

On Oct. 4, Agnew was back in Omaha for a press conference and rally at the Hilton Hotel. It was a carefully controlled low-key performance wholly unlike the combative Agnew of 1968 and 1970.

Agnew Rise, Fall Swift

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spiro T. Agnew moved swiftly across the American political scene from obscurity to a term as a controversial vice president and finally to a dubious place in history, as the first vice president to face formal criminal charges.

Agnew resigned Wednesday and pleaded no contest to a felony charge of federal income tax evasion.

He was governor of Maryland and the object of countless "Spiro Who?" jokes when Richard M. Nixon chose him as his running mate at the 1968 Republican National Convention.

In his first term as vice president he often had the role of sharp-tongued attacker of the political opposition and of the news media.

But when the Nixon administration found itself under siege after the disclosures of the Watergate affair, Agnew remained untouched.

Then, on Aug. 2, he was told in a letter from U.S. Atty. George Beall in Baltimore that he was under investigation for possible violations of extortion, bribery and income tax laws.

The vice president denied the charges and called them "damned lies."

Two months later, Agnew told a cheering audience of Republican women in Los Angeles that "I intend to stay and fight." He vowed he would not resign even if indicted.

"I am innocent of the charges against me," he said.

Agnew was the second vice president to resign. John C. Calhoun resigned Dec. 28, 1832, to become a senator from South Carolina. Calhoun, who had been politically at odds with President Andrew Jackson, had run in a special election for a vacancy caused by the resignation of Sen. Robert Y. Hayne.

Earlier this year, he told a group of Harvard students in reply to a theoretical question about Watergate: "One thing is clear, and that is what I said before — if I found myself unable to continue on a basis of conscience I wouldn't stay here as vice president . . . I would have to resign."

In doing so Wednesday, Agnew told the court he did so because the lengthy trial which would result if he fought the charges would be divisive for the country.

Thus came to a halt the good fortune Agnew has experienced through life in working his way up from a kid hawking vegetables on a Baltimore street to the nation's second highest elective office.

Agnew was born Nov. 9, 1918, to a Greek immigrant father and a Virginia-raised mother. His father, who changed his name from Anagnostopoulos, was in the restaurant business in Baltimore and became a leader in the city's Greek community.

After Agnew graduated from high school, he attended Johns Hopkins University, majoring in chemistry. The curriculum gave him trouble and after three years he transferred to evening classes in law at the University of Baltimore, working days at an insurance company. It was there that he met his wife, Judy.

World War II came, he joined the Army, became an officer and served with an armored division in Europe. Agnew returned to Baltimore at the end of the war and to law school.

Living in suburban Baltimore, Agnew in 1962 was elected Baltimore County executive. In 1966, he was a racial moderate — in a border state where open housing was an issue which split the Democrats — and was elected governor, the state's fifth GOP executive in its history.

In the summer of 1968, he was unknown outside his home state when Nixon picked him to be his running mate. Agnew said at the time he was stunned. "I had no idea that this was going to happen. It came as a bolt out of the blue."

After the nomination he said he had to become a household word. He did that and more — he became the darling of conservative Republicans.

During that first campaign, Agnew hammered hard and continuously on his favorite theme of law and order.

He termed student dissenters "basically parasitic." In one speech he described Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic presidential nominee, as being "squishy soft" on Communism. Agnew several times apologized and said it was a blunder if he left the impression that he considered Humphrey was not loyal.

After the election Agnew was given many assignments by Nixon. He participated in Cabinet meetings and in Nixon's meetings with Capitol Hill leaders. He headed the space task force. In all, Agnew chaired a total of 13 councils and commissions.

Agnew grew to be a popular speaker at Republican Party gatherings. In late 1969 he returned to the rhetoric of his campaign. He denounced antiwar protesters by saying, "A spirit of national masochism prevails, encouraged by an effete corps of impudent snobs who characterized themselves as intellectuals."

Next, the news media came into his sights.

In a magazine interview he said he felt at times that those writing for the papers, particularly the "big city liberal media, (were) about the most superficial thinkers I've ever seen."

In a speech in Des Moines, Iowa, Agnew blasted the television networks and their commentators. He called them "a tiny and closed fraternity of privileged men, elected by no one and enjoying a monopoly sanctioned and licensed by the government."

Prior to the 1970 off-year elections, Agnew threw himself into the campaigning with zeal. He said he wanted the voters to reject "radical liberals" — whom he defined as those who could be "depended upon to vote against the interests of law and order and against the interests of a representative society and against the foreign policy of the United States virtually every time."

Less was heard from Agnew in the next two years and there was a question whether Nixon would pick him to run again. He did, but shortly after their re-election, Agnew's staff was cut and his office was moved from the White House to the Old Executive Office Building.

Then Nixon was reported to have told a visitor that John B. Connally would be the likely 1976 GOP presidential nominee, rather than Agnew.

Agnew got no backing from the White House, in the view of his friends. All Nixon said through a spokesman was that he had confidence in him.

Press Club Won't Change Room's Name

Omaha (UPI) — In the wake of the news of Spiro T. Agnew's resignation as vice president, the Omaha Press Club whose press room bears his name, said the name will remain.

Press Club President Howard S. Silber said "the free press of United States has contributed immeasurably in bringing Mr. Agnew to justice.

"I see no reason for not perpetuating the name of 'Spiro T. Agnew Room' of the Omaha Press Club," Silber said, "as a monument to our free press and as a continuing reminder to the American people of the enormous importance of a free press to the strength of this country.

Bishop Offers Agnew Solace, Spiritual Help

Louisville, Ky. (UPI) — The Rt. Rev. David K. Leighton, of Baltimore, Bishop of Maryland, said late Wednesday he sent a telegram to Vice President Spiro Agnew offering his "offices, solace and spiritual help, if desired" to the vice president and his family.

Connally Disavows Candidacy

Houston (UPI) — John B. Connally said Wednesday he is not a candidate to succeed Vice President Spiro T. Agnew but declined to say whether he would accept the office if offered.

Connally, three-time former Texas Democratic governor and former U.S. treasury secretary considered by many as a candidate for President in 1976, said he had not talked to Nixon about Agnew's resignation.

"I will not speculate on what he is going to do because I have no idea at all what he is going to do," Connally said. "As I've tried to tell you all consistently, I'm not a candidate for anything, I'm not going to be a candidate for anything. That includes the vice presidency.

Asked if he would accept the post if Nixon offers it, Connally said: "I won't respond to that question because it is a highly speculative question. I don't like to cross bridges until I come to them."

Whipping On Way

Colombo, Sri Lanka (UPI) — The prime minister says her government will introduce whipping to penalize food thieves.

Reagan Quiet On Candidacy

Sacramento, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, a potential 1976 contender for the Republican presidential nomination, said Wednesday he was "shocked, saddened" at the resignation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

The 62-year-old California governor refused to discuss whether he would be available to succeed Agnew if asked by President Nixon.

Reagan said he had no inkling the resignation was coming.

Witness: At Least $5.2 Million Spent By Johnson For Security

Washington (AP) — A defender of the $10.2 million security spending on President Nixon's homes said Wednesday at least $5.2 million was spent for security at former President Lyndon B. Johnson's Texas ranch.

Rep. John Buchanan, R-Ala., said at the opening of House hearings into the security spending for Nixon's homes at San Clemente and Key Biscayne that the Johnson ranch figures came from the General Services Administration.

Buchanan said he believes the $5.2 million figure is incomplete.

He said $1.7 million was reported spent for security construction, $1.3 million for communications — of which $750,000 was later recoverable by the government — and $2.2 million for leased communication equipment.

The $10.2 million Nixon home security figure includes $3.7 million for security, $5.8 million for military expense, $544,263 for transportation facilities and $214,161 for Secret Service installations.

Buchanan claimed that the security cost for former President Johnson's huge Texas ranch was about $300,000 more than the cost for both San Clemente and Key Biscayne.

Buchanan spoke briefly about the figures in introductory remarks at start of the hearings by a House government operations subcommittee.

The leadoff witness was Comptroller Gen. Elmer B. Staats of Congress' watchdog General Accounting Office who testified about relatively low security costs for past presidents.

Staats said the known security expenses for former President John F. Kennedy included $97,000 for a fallout shelter at Palm Beach. Unknown expenses included military and Secret Service costs for six guardhouses and a trailer command post at Hyannisport and landscaping arranged by the Navy to provide some screening from public view, Staats said.

He said the cost of installing devices at the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower's farm in Gettysburg was $20,560.

Expenses for former President Harry S. Truman included $1,200 for a guardhouse at his Independence, Mo., home, $5,400 for a wrought iron fence around the house, and $22,000 for alarms and a closed circuit television security system, Staats reported.

The staff had no figures for the cost of security for former President Franklin D. Roosevelt but said it included military guards around the outer perimeters of his home at Hyde Park, a simple alarm system and guardposts, including space heaters for the guards.

Little was known of what protective measures if any, were provided for Roosevelt's "little White House" in Warm Springs, Ga., the staff said.

Judge Rules On Sovereignty Of Blackfeet

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — A federal court judge held Wednesday that the Blackfeet Indians of Montana have only the sovereignty Congress grants them, and rejected an assertion by the tribe that the Blackfeet were in their rights in policing—or not policing—gambling on the reservation.

The decision by Judge Russell E. Smith was widely awaited in western states because of recent moves by some Indian tribes toward establishing on-reservation gambling and even casinos.

Smith's ruling came in a case in which the Blackfeet Tribal Court had sought to stop FBI agents from removing four gambling machines and other gambling devices seized in an Aug. 28 raid on a bar at East Glacier, Mont.

On the subject of Indian sovereignty, Smith wrote: "No doubt Indian tribes were at one time sovereign and even now the tribes are described as sovereign. The blunt fact, however, is that an Indian tribe is sovereign to the extent that the United States permits it to be sovereign. Neither more nor less."

Court Upholds Controls On Retail Gas Prices

Washington (AP) — The Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals Wednesday upheld the government's Phase 4 controls on retail gasoline prices.

The court overturned a preliminary injunction issued by a lower court in a suit brought by the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers.

The dealers have protested a Cost of Living Council prohibition against automatically increasing their prices to reflect higher wholesale costs of gasoline.

The council maintained that the rigid controls are necessary because gasoline prices have risen sharply this year because of the gasoline shortage and have made a "disproportionate" contribtuion to the country's inflation problems.

The appeals court was created especially to consider cases under the administration's wage-price controls.

Judge Martin D. Van Oosterhout said in ruling against the gasoline retailers that the price controls provide administrative remedies if the controls work unjustly and that the retailers have not exhausted these remedies.

The court also held that the regulations fall within the council's authority to control prices.

Van Oosterhout noted that the council increased gasoline price ceilings Sept. 28, saying the action gives "further support to the view that applications for relief because of inequities or hardship would receive fair consideration."

Jerry S. Cohen, attorney for the gasoline dealers, said he probably would appeal the decision to the Supreme Court. He also expressed surprise that the appeals court based its decision on the administrative remedies available to gasoline dealers. He said it would be a "futile act" for each dealer to request special exceptions or exemptions.

Girl, 10, Recalls Talk By Sparky The Fire Dog

Miami, Fla. (AP) — When fire broke out at home, 10-year-old Hiraida Agosto remembered the advice of Sparky, the fire dog.

She calmly took her 6-year-old sister, Karen, across the street to a neighbor's house and asked Christian Pierre, 13, to call the Fire Department and her mother, who was at work.

Sparky, a fireman dressed as the fire dog, had visited Hiraida's school last week to give a talk on fire prevention and what to do in case of fire.

Cost To Medicare Patients Hiked

Washington (UPI) — The nation's 23 million aged Medicare beneficiaries will have to pay $84 toward their hospitalization beginning Jan. 21 instead of the current $72, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) announced Wednesday.

This is more than double the $40 paid by beneficiaries when the program began in 1966.

The increase in out-of-pocket hospital expenses, necessary because of rising hospital costs, was approved by the Cost of Living Council, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said.

The council last year turned down a scheduled $8 increase in charges to Medicare hospital patients and held it to $4, thus forcing the next increase to $12, an HEW spokesman said.

Based on a national average of hospital costs, which now exceed $100 a day in some areas, the $84 represents the average daily cost of all hospital services for Medicare patients including a bed in a semiprivate room, meals, operating room charges, medical equipment, hospital-furnished drugs and nursing care.

Because of the change in the so-called hospital deductible, the law also requires changes in the amounts a beneficiary pays toward hospitalization care of more than 60 days or after-hospital care in a skilled nursing home for more than 20 days.

Next year, the aged will pay $21 a day for the 60th through the 90th day, up from $18 a day. For post-hospital care the patient will pay $10.50 a day toward the cost of the 21st through the 100th day instead of the current $9.

Medical health insurance for the aged provides automatic hospital coverage for Social Security beneficiaries aged 65 and older and optional coverage of doctor's bills. Beneficiaries are eligible for partial government payment toward their hospital care for at least 90 days during a benefit period, which starts when he is hospitalized and ends when he is out of the hospital for 60 days. In addition, he has a "lifetime reserve" of 60 days.

If the patient must draw on this "lifetime reserve" beginning Jan. 1 he will have to pay $42 for each day instead of the present $36, HEW said.

Weinberger said he is required by law to examine hospital costs and set an annual charge to patients based on that analysis. The upcoming $12 increase reflects increased hospital cost in 1972.

Since Medicare began the hospital deductible has increased from $40 to $44 in 1969, $52 in 1970, $60 in 1972, $68 in 1972 and $72 this year.

GOP Bounces Back From Finance Crisis

Washington (AP) — With its big money contributors scared off by the Watergate scandals, Republican Party officials say it now is recovering from financial crisis with an army of small donors.

Little more than a month ago party officials were lamenting publicly that the two-party system was in danger because the sources of Republican operating funds were drying up.

Now, GOP National Chairman George Bush said a direct mail campaign has overcome the setback and the party will end 1972 in the black and still outspend the Democrats 3 to 1.

What's more, Bush said, most of the money by far is coming from the rank and file. So far this year 85% of the contributors have given less than $100 each with an average gift of $22.35.

In August, the GOP took in $260,000 in contributions, against a $400,000 monthly budget. But in September, after massive mailings, income soared to $380,000.

The September figure is particularly significant coming toward the end of the year. Most political money flows in early in the year.

Most of the September income, $300,000 of it, came from the under $100 class, party finance chairman Pat Wilson said.

Wilson said that with some cash already on hand, another $300,000 would take care of Republican National Committee operations this year.

The national committee, under new chairman George Bush, has been trying, apparently with some success, to divorce itself from the scandals connected with President Nixon's re-election campaign.

"I hope you will agree that in spite of the ill-advised actions of certain employes of the administration in connection with Watergate, the Republican Party leadership . . . will not roll over and play dead," solicitation letters mailed out around Labor Day said.

"The Democrats are trying to bury the entire Republican Party," the letters said. "We must not let them bury the party and thereby hurt the many honest and sincere dedicated people who are in the Congress, as well as many who are in the administration but who had nothing to do with Watergate."

While the letters conceded "Watergate has drastically cut our flow of funds," Bush said the situation now has reversed.

"I'm rather confident that we will get through the year without having to borrow a nickel and end up the year in reasonable cash," he said.

Kremlin Behavior Spells Danger

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The behavior of the Kremlin now, as compared with its attitude in the 1956 and 1967 Middle East wars, spells serious danger to the fledgling Moscow-Washington detente.

The fragile structure of the new relationship built in the two summits of President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev is being subjected to a severe test that will determine whether it is too weak to withstand the new explosion.

The Suez war of 1956 and the six-day war of 1967 each produced a situation that could have brought a Soviet-American clash. There were some extremely tense moments, notably in 1967. But in both those cases the Russians wanted hostilities halted because their client Arabs clearly were in desperate straits.

This time the Arabs are doing much better, having had the advantage of surprise on their side. The Russians have seemed to want to defer talk of cease-fire at least until they could make out the Arab prospects more clearly.

In the 1956 Suez crisis, the Russians rattled their rockets, called attention to their armed might and threatened "appropriate" measures to deal with the combined British-French and Israeli attack on Egypt. But Israel had driven swiftly through Sinai to the canal. Egypt's defenses were shattered. Moscow was willing to call for cease-fire and salvage what was salvagable.

When war broke out on June 5, 1967, Moscow and Washington quickly consulted by "hot line" in an atmosphere of extreme anxiety.

Again Russia's Arab clients, taken by surprise, were rapidly reduced to a desperate situation. Again the Russians were willing to join in a cease-fire call.

In each case, Moscow and Washington were claiming readiness to collaborate in urging restraint upon their respective allies.

This time the situation has an uglier look as pressures mount on both superpowers.

Washington is anxious about the possibility of backlash in Arab oil states that might lead to serious fuel stoppage, a step that might be taken to discourage such American military help to Israel as the replacement of her considerable initial losses.

The Russians have been advising other Arab states to give all possible help to Egypt and Syria, also indicating a readiness to replace lost military equipment.

The key factor seems this time to be the different look of the opening round. Egypt, having scored more initial gain than many of her own people had dared hope, can expect a rallying to her banner, since nothing succeeds like success.

All this suggests a longer conflict this time, and the longer it goes on the more the pressures on Washington grow and the greater the gap becomes between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Tornado Hurts At Least 15 Near Wichita

Wichita, Kan. (AP) — A tornado swooped into a mobile home park southeast of Wichita late Wednesday, overturning or damaging about 30 units and injuring at least 15 persons.

None of the injuries were serious and only two persons were admitted to the infirmary at McConnell Air Force Base for treatment.

The storm hit the Long Branch Trailer Court about 4:27 p.m., the sheriff's department dispatcher reported. The trailer court is located at 47th and South Webb Road, about five miles from the city.

Detroit Mayor Fires Police Commissioner

Detroit (AP) — Detroit Mayor Roman Gribbs has fired Police Commissioner John Nichols. Nichols is a candidate for mayor in the November election.

Nichols, who had previously declined to resign, had indicated that during the campaign he might seek a leave of absence or use up some of his accumulated time off.

Children Bring Joy

Editor's note: This is the second in a three-part series on the choices about career and children that women today have. Part II — Decision to have children.

By SANDRA PESMEN

"Parenting is like sex. If it's done by a pair of insensitive, bungling fools, it can be one of life's most disappointing experiences. But if it's done by two loving, sensitive, gentle people who care about each other and their offspring, it can be excruciatingly joyful. And, like good sex, you can't adequately describe it to somebody who hasn't known it."

The young mother said that slowly, as her infant clawed at the laces of worn tennis shoes and her 2-year-old toddled carefully up the front porch steps, dripping ice cream from a ragged cone onto the welcome mat.

"I think parenting is walking in the woods with a tiny hand clutching yours, and hearing the small person next to you ask, 'Why, Mommy?' or 'What's that, Daddy?' and then wait patiently for your answer.

"Maybe that's the best part of all — having someone really listen to your answers because he trusts you and knows you love him and because loving you back is the most important thing in his life and the most natural thing in the world for him to want to do," she added.

Pausing in the middle of a satisfying career to have a baby can be a very serious step and there are no guarantees that a woman is going to like motherhood. But she generally takes the chance for three reasons, according to Dr. Brenda Solomon, Chicago psychiatrist associated with the Institute for Psychoanalysis:

—"The biological timetable, which determines a woman's actual childbearing years, coupled with an instinctive urge in man to reproduce.

—"The idea of having children because it gives people an opportunity to duplicate what they think is good about themselves and try to make it even better.

Joellen is 35, and she recently had her second child. But before she settled down to march in the buggy brigade, she worked nine years in a Chicago bank doing economic research and computer work.

"When I married, everybody I knew had babies immediately. I evaluated that for myself and decided that since everybody else was doing it, babies were probably worthwhile, but I didn't want to do it right away. There were special things we wanted, like a house, furniture, a car and enough money in savings to pay for a couple of babies, so I continued to work," she recalled.

"But I remember that all during the years I worked, both of us looked forward to the time when we'd have children. The appeal of family life . . . of having more than one person to love. . . was very great. I like loving. But the decision to actually do it became more difficult as there were more and more material things we wanted."

She smiled and said with a touch of bitterness in her voice, "I'm sure my bosses never realized they had anything to do with our decision to have children, but I was educated in college for a real career, and I used the pill. So I could have continued to put off having children while I climbed up the ladder.

"The truth is I wasn't promoted as I should have been through the years because I was a woman. When I finally quit, and they hired a man to replace me at a higher salary and with an impressive title, they admitted that to me with some apology. But it doesn't matter now, because I really intended to stop somewhere along the way and have children, and we're very happy with our life-style now."

Joellen's sister, Allison, 32, who recently had her first baby, a daughter, also prepared in college for a career, then married before graduation.

"We were programmed all our lives to have children. It was part of our image of ourselves: We were people who were going to be parents. In order to drop that image you have to have a really strong incentive on the other side, like a very good job with future possiblities, and for a few years I had that."

Allison started working in the script department of a television station and worked her way up to a semi-administrative writing post. The job held challenge and a good union salary.

"I made as much money as the men I worked with. I worked 10 years because all that time I was happy writing,doing my creative thing. But then I got boxed into a corner I didn't enjoy at the office. We began thinking more and more about trying to have a family.

"When a woman begins to get discontent in her work, as I did, she can go home with honor if she's pregnant. A man can't, and many would probably like to," Allison said.

Another new mother, Judy 34, said she took a long time about making her mind up to have children because she was afraid she might not like children after she had them.

"I graduated from college as a home economist, and I was anxious to use my education. I knew I would have a career until it would be comfortable for us financially to have a family. It was always in the back of my mind.

Since I was good at my work, I kept getting promoted and making more money, so the decision to go home and sit on the front porch with a baby became harder and harder to make."

Judy said that as she approached 30 she began to feel she was missing out on something in life. The experience of pregnancy and childbirth and the responsiblity of a child didn't sound like fun, yet she suspected there might be some rewards.

"It was like missing a link in life. We were living in a world with families, children were all around us, and we were kind of separated from everybody else around us."

"Having a child brings a lot of human relationship into a marriage."

She glowed as she said the next words. "Having a child brings a lot of human relationship into a marriage. Happiness and sadness take on new meaning because it's different to be happy with someone who belongs to both of you. And it's overwhelming to discover how valuable human life is, and it's exciting to watch that human life develop."

She groped for words to describe her feelings as she added, "and there are little joyful things, too, about being a parent. Yesterday our 2-year-old went outside and found a cone that had fallen from a tree. I was hopelessly touched when he picked it up and brought it into the house to give to me. It was the first time he had ever given me a gift of his own."

ERA Bracelets Sold

ERA bracelets, similar to the POW and MIA bracelets, will be sold by the League of Women Voters. The bracelets are a "symbol of the shackles that still bind the American woman to a past era," according to the League.

Men and women are pledging to wear the bracelets until the Equal Rights Amendment is ratified by eight more states and becomes a part of the Constitution.

Orders for the $3 bracelets are now being taken and the bracelets will be available by the end of October.

Persons who wish to order a bracelet may send their name, address and a $3 check to the League of Women Voters Office, 1614 N St., Lincoln, Neb. 68508. Profits will be put into a fund for support of the ERA amendment.

'The Midnight Dancers,' Another Mystery Novel

books by Cynthia Johnson

And now, another mystery-suspense novel from the same lady who brought you "Ride A White Dolphin" and "Walk In The Paradise Garden."

Anne Maybury's new book, "The Midnight Dancers" (Random House) may keep some readers up past their bedtime. But in the end, its effect is similar to that of countless other novels embraced by this genre: It keeps you engrossed and away from the television set. But when you're finished, you wish you'd spent the time reading something else.

Ms. Maybury's story centers around one Cathy Mountavon, a young, attractive artist who has accepted a commission to create a stained glass window for a building being constructed in the new, westernized sector of Bou Hammagan, a city in North Africa.

Accompanied by her young step-daughter, she arrives in Bou Hammagan and is joined by her husband, Mark, a television commentator who is making a documentary on the expansion of the city.

Almost immediately things begin to run amuck.

An unidentified character sends Cathy a silver box containing a poetic death-threat. To complicate matters, the box once belonged to Mark's former wife who had previously lost her life in a mysterious car-pedestrian accident.

During an outing in the desert, Cathy narrowly escapes being trapped inside a cave when the crumbling walls collapse; and then, for icing on the cake, (would you believe?) her step-daughter's diary disappears, and is returned — with part of a page missing — only after 100 pounds ransom is paid.

And Cathy's tale of woes doesn't end there. No siree. There's the matter of Mark, who is not as sympathetic as he should be towards a woman in her predicament. And her step-daughter suddenly develops an unexplained aversion towards her.

In traditional fashion, episode follows murky episode and the suspense builds until that moment in which all the threads are untangled, and the appropriate lives saved.

Generally speaking, Ms. Maybury is fairly adept at sustaining her reader's interest — although her perpetual descriptions of brilliant desert sunsets become rather wearisome.

Hers isn't really a heart-pounding plot, but she manages to drop a sufficient number of misleading clues that serve to keep the reader off the right track until the moment she chooses to reveal the identity of the guilty party.

Finally, however, the conclusion proves to be the author's nemesis. Had she not spelled out the answers so clearly, leaving the reader with nothing to do but close the book and forget it, the end result might have been more commendable.

Not that it would have been easy to create a conclusion with punch. Admittedly, it is difficult to keep a story going after the cat's out of the bag; and Ms. Maybury isn't the only writer to have fallen into the trap of anti-climax. In fact she's in very good company in this respect.

But it isn't the kind of company you'd want to cultivate.

She Still Loves 'Ex'

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: After 20 years of marriage (and five children) my husband and I decided on a trial separation. I begged him to go to our minister or a marriage counselor, but he refused.

Even tho I loved him, after a year's separation, I filed for divorce, thinking that would bring him to his senses. I was amazed and heartsick when he let me go ahead with the divorce. After the divorce was final, he informed me that he was getting married again in two weeks!

Abby, this brought forth such a feeling of love for him as I had never known before. I made a complete fool of myself by telling him how much I loved him, and begging him to marry me again. He said, no, his mind was made up. My whole world fell apart.

The night before he was to be married, he phoned me and said he would always love me, but was going ahead with his marriage anyway. This really tore my heart out.

With the help of tranquilizers and my friends and family, I'm slowly getting my head together, but I can't stop loving this man. Don't tell me to keep busy. I am employed full-time and have a 10-room house to take care of, plus three children still living at home.

If I could only hate him, it would be so much easier, but I love him. Please help me. I am 43, which is a terrible time to be left alone. Sign me,

CRYING OVER SPILT MILK

DEAR CRYING: The milk is not only "spilt" — it's curdled, so quit feeling sorry for yourself. There is a valuable lesson to be learned here. A woman should never "file for divorce," hoping a man she loves will come to his senses.

Your "ex" has a mean streak in him a mile wide. Why else would he call you the night before his marriage to tell you he would always "love" you, but he's marrying another? You may need a therapist to help you "get over" him. But get over him, you must!

Scout Eludes Tracking Dogs

Helmville, Mont (UPI) — A 17-year-old Eagl Scout who police say shot fr persons to death has eludedtracking dogs by discarding is jacket and shoes in a deseed ranchhouse where he hid om searchers, Sheriff David Cllings said.

Powell told rwsmen that the dogs lost thescent of Roger Caryl of Decatr, Ill. He said the manhunt wa being pressed along the connental divide.

Caryl was scused of shooting Samuel Akins, 42, and his son, Steven, 18, with whom he shared a cabin at the Whitetail Ranch in Ovando, Mont., just north of Helmville.

Then, police said, Caryl walked the half mile to the main house on the dude ranch where he worked as a wrangler, and shot the manager, John Miller, 23, and the cook, Ruby Judd, 62, of Nebraska.

The motive in the shootings was unclear, but ranch hands said Caryl was fascinated by wild west bandits, liked to be called "Tex McCord" after a fabled 19th Century bandit, and had been ordered to bury a dog he had shot to death just before the shootings occurred.

Collings said searchers were continuing their hunt in this area about 40-50 miles west of Helena because, "we have no reason to believe he got out."

Thone Hits Foreign Aid Giveaways

Washingtn (UPI) — Rep. Charles Tone, R-Neb., said Wednesday that "Uncle Sam is playing Uncle Sap through the foreign aidgiveaway programs."

In his weekly newsletter, Thone sid he hopes a conference ommittee will accept the Senæ foreign aid authorization bill which calls for expenditures of $1.9 billion, or about $800 million less than the House measure.

"Actually, the foreign aid bill covers just a small part of America's giveaway programs," the Nebraska Republican said. "We have about 28 spigots through which we pour giveaways, 'soft loans' and sales with 'soft currencies.' The current total giveaway abroad is $18 billion per year."

Thone said it cannot be denied that some good has been done through foreign aid, especially in rebuilding countries devastated by World War II. But he added that the programs have become "filled with waste and foolishness."

Postal Service Urging Early Holiday Mailing

Thought about Christmas yet? The Postal Service has, and already it is urging early mailing of holiday parcels and greetings.

A long list of suggested deadlines released by the Postal Service begins with next Monday, Oct. 15. It is suggested surface parcels to the Far East be mailed by then.

Suggested deadline for Armed forces in the Far East is Oct. 27 for surface mail.

The Postal Service suggests mailing surface parcels within the continental United States by Dec. 10, and surface greeting cards by Dec. 15. Last deadline on the list is Dec. 21, for airmail parcels and letters within the continental U.S.

Hemp Seed Pot For the Birds

BALTIMORE (AP) — Police narcotics squads may be frequenting bird feed stores if the word gets out.

Dr. Samuel Fox, medical director of the Maryland Drug Abuse Administration, says he has experimented with hemp seed, a favorite bird food, and found the supposedly sterile seeds sprout into fast growing marijuana plants.

Dr. Fox said he took some home, soaked it, then tossed it out the window. "I did have a dozen sprigs of marijuana growing," he said.

Nixon Rating Equals All-Time Low In Poll

By Louis Harris

President Nixon's over-all rating from the American people on the way he is handling the job of the Presidency stands at 65-32% negative, equalling the all-time low Mr. Nixon registered in August.

Only last February, in the aftermath of a successful settlement of the Vietnam war and before the Watergate investigation, the President's job rating was 60-39% positive.

In addition, on the dimension of "inspiring confidence personally in the White House," President Nixon's rating has fallen to 73-18% negative, the lowest recorded for him since he took office. Two in every three adults, 66-25%, agree with the statement that "President Nixon does not inspire confidence as a President should."

— By 80 to 17%, the public takes an extremely negative view of the President on "keeping the economy healthy." Specifically, his Phase 4 program of economic controls comes up with 74-15% negative marks. On "keeping down the cost of living," he is rated 85-12% negative. Obviously, the public has lost confidence in Nixon's ability to protect its pocketbook during a period of soaring inflation.

— The other main source of trouble for the President stems from Watergate and scandals involving top figures in the Nixon Administration. For example, he receives negative ratings on "handling corruption in government" generally, by 83-12%. Specifically on "handling the Watergate case," his marks are 77-16% negative. On dealing with the requests for White House tapes on Watergate, the public rates him 71-21% negative.

Nonetheless, despite these devastating results concerning his stewardship of the White House, Nixon still maintains the confidence of a majority of the public for his handling of foreign affairs:

— By 66-33%, he receives good-to-excellent marks from the people on "seeking for peace in the world."

— By 62-33%, he is credited with doing a better-than-average job on "handling relations with Russia."

— By 51-36%, a majority backs the President in his selection of Dr. Henry Kissinger as his Secretary of State.

Farmers To Get Money From Services Group

The Nebraska Public Services Commission Friday will begin to reimburse farmers who lost money when a grain shortage was discovered at the Ames Farmers Cooperative Association, despite protests from the Commodity Credit Crop. (CCC.)

The CCC through the U.S. Department of Agriculture objected to a pro rata formula drawn up by the commission for holders of warehouse receipts at the Ames elevator.

The commission has decided, upon advice from the Attorney General's office, to stick with its original formula over the CCC's protests.

The commission closed the Ames Farmers Union Cooperative Association last March when an inspection disclosed grain shortages and "out-of-condition" grain. Under commission regulations, the commission takes title to all grain stored in a warehouse when a shortage is uncovered. The commission is then charged with distributing the existing resources to warehouse receipt holders.

Commissioner Eric Rasmussen said he was pleased that the commission stuck by its original formula in the face of the CCC's attempt to put "their interests ahead of the average farm citizen."

Rifle Is Stolen

A sewing machine, a .22-caliber rifle, and a tape player were taken from the William Van Dyke home at 1111 Manatt, according to police. Police said there were no visible signs of forced entry. The items were valued at $444.

Money Bags Taken

A burglar or burglars took two money bags containing $211 from the Mobil Service Station at 7000 O St., according to police reports Wednesday. Police said entrance was apparently gained by breaking a window.

Government OKs Plan To Combat Drug Abuse

The federal government has approved the Nebraska Commission on Drug's comprehensive plan for combatting drug abuse, commission director Jeff Kushner said Wednesday.

The approval means that the commission will be able to grant $114,045 in federal funds shortly to local projects to deter drug use, and it opens the door for an additional $114,000 in grants for Nebraska projects outlined in the plan.

Kushner said one of the first programs to receive such a grant will be the positive peer culture approach to drug education already implemented by the Omaha Public School District.

Other projects eligible for funding include placement of drug abuse counselors in the community mental health centers and a positive peer culture program at the York Women's Reformatory.

Positive peer culture is designed to help youth solve personal problems that might lead to drug use. The approach utilizes motivation from peer group members instead of from law enforcement officials and teachers.

Kushner added that the federal government posed 17 questions concerning the state plan, but he said all involved peripheral matters, such as the state code of ethics and the state pay plan. All questions, he said, will be answered in time to begin approving grants by November.

Five Students At UNL Receive Stipend Renewal

Five University of Nebraska-Lincoln students have received renewals of the Laverne Noyes Scholarship for the 1973-74 academic year.

The students, who will receive $500, include:

Cubans Interrupt Chilean's Speech

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Cuba's foreign minister broke from his seat in the General Assembly Wednesday night and rushed with some of his aides toward the podium where the ambassador of Chile's new military government was assailing Fidel Castro.

Other diplomats moved in to stop the Cubans and then U.N. guards intervened.

It was difficult to tell exactly how many Cuban aides joined Foreign Minister Raul Roa in the rush toward the podium. Witnesses on the floor said it appeared there were two or three others.

The speech by Ambassador Raul Bazan of Chile was halted but he resumed after order was restored.

Bazan said Prime Minister Castro "used to watch executions in public and even invited diplomats from other countries to watch." He said Foreign Minister Roa was "a man who chews the cud of hatred and knows none of dignity" and "a man who does not even represent the Cuban people."

Roa and his aides then came forward, shouting "hijo de puta," Spanish for "son of a bitch," and "maricon," derogatory Spanish term for homosexual. Nicaraguan delegates then rose from their seats and began shouting the same names at the Cubans.

The General Assembly was only about a quarter filled and most of those present were Latin Americans.

Ambassador Leopoldo Benites of Ecuador, the assembly president, then announced: "This meeting is adjourned. The meeting is ended."

He rescinded this, however, after order was restored.

But he asked the delegates "to forgive this incident, which is unheard of in the history of the United Nations."

Last Wednesday Ambassador Bazan was involved in an incident on the speaker's lecturn in the assembly with Ambassador Jamil M. Baroody of Saudi Arabia.

Bazan was about to deny a Soviet charge that Chile's military junta had planned to execute the nation's leading Communist but was halted by a Soviet point of order. Baroody then came to the lecturn and appealed to Chile "to suspend the sentence."

Tanaka And Brezhnev Fail In Treaty Talks

Moscow (UPI) — Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka ended three days of talks with Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev Wednesday, failing to agree on a World War II peace treaty but planning to cooperate on oil and gas development in Siberia.

Detailed discussion on oil and gas projects was put off, however, while the two sides attempted to thrash out the treaty issue, a thorn in the side of better relations between the two countries for several years.

A highly placed Japanese official told newsmen "a very large step" had been made to iron out differences over the treaty. Tanaka said settlement hinged on the return to Japan of four Kurile islands seized by the Soviets in the closing days of World War II.

Japanese officials said the Soviets agreed for the first time to discuss "problems left over from the war," a euphemism for the Kurile question, represented a major concession by Russia. Until last year, the Kremlin was unwilling to acknowledge there were any "problems."

Senate Recess Cancelled

Washington (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield announced Wednesday that because of the Middle East war and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's resignation he had cancelled the two-week Senate recess scheduled to begin Friday.

"Because of the situation that has occurred overseas and at home, it is the better part of wisdom to make this announcement at this time," Mansfield said.

Mansfield said "there may be pro forma meetings and legislation may be attended to as well."

Assistant Republican leader Robert Griffin said the GOP leadership supported Mansfield's decision.

WHAT IS MEANT BY FITTING?

Why is proper "fitting" of a hearing aid important? First, no two hearing losses are alike — there are an infinite variety of degrees and types of hearing loss. Second, the hearing aid is no longer merely a sound amplifier: it has become a sophisticated electronic device. So "fitting" a hearing aid is a highly developed art that involves determining precisely the nature and extent of the person's hearing loss, then selecting and adjusting the hearing aid that will give him the best possible help for that loss.

More next week.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Specific Plans Spark Savings

By ROBERT PETERSON

Anticipation is often sweeter than realization. Knowing this, we should put down on paper the things we'd enjoy doing when we get our gold watch. We may be unable to accomplish all the things listed, but we'll enjoy the anticipation.

Giving specific form to retirement wishes may help them come true. When we know exactly what we want, dynamic forces nudge us into paths which surmourt obstacles and guide us to eventual achievement.

Here's a letter from a retired electrician who says that shortly after he and his wife passed 40, they wrote down half a dozen things they hoped to enjoy when they retired — far, far in the future. All were things they wanted but felt they couldn't afford. At that point they doubted if they'd ever realize these wishes, but the fact that they were specific sparked a program of savings.

"I was 44 years old when we set up a special savings account we labeled our 'bonbon' writes Henry S. Thomason, 68. "For the next two decades we dropped into this account any extra money that came our way or that we saved through thrift. It usually added up to $50 or $60 a month.

"We promised ourselves that if my pension and the Social Security proved sufficient we'd blow the bonbon on luxuries.

"When I retired at 66, we found our fixed income for the future a little over $450 monthly. Our home was paid for and we had a few thousand in bonds for emergencies, so we felt we could revel in some luxuries at last. Our bonbon over the 22-year period had grown to a mighty $18,000." Here are the six things the Thomasons have done with the money:

1. A trip to Scotland. Shortly after retiring they flew to Glasgow, homeland of their ancestors, and spent three months. Cost for both of them: $1,800.

2. A shop in the basement. Mr. Thomason said he'd enjoyed woodworking all his life but never had proper equipment. So he bought a full set of new power tools and now spends several hours a day making reproductions of antique furniture. Cost: $1,200.

3. A motor boat. No more rowboats for the Thomasons. This one that they keep at a marina on Chicago's North Side cost $800.

4. A mink coat for the missus. It's a foolish extravagance, but Mrs. Thomason says she gets more pleasure from this furpiece than the mink who grew it. Cost: $900.

5. A small greenhouse. They both like plants and flowers, so they bought materials for a small heated greenhouse they've built just off their kitchen. Cost: $1,-00.

6. A new car every three years. During their working years they thriftily drove secondhand cars. But not anymore. Annual cost: $600.

It's not a good idea to put all pleasures in cold storage until you retire. But there's something refreshing and inspiring about this couple who had the good sense to make a list of things they really craved, and to postpone luxuries until they could really afford them. Just having that list gave them the sweet pleasures of anticipation.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Thursday

Virgo eschews the coverup, usually comes clean and lets chips fall where they may. Libra accents beauty, cosmetics, perfume. Libra will "cover up" for the sake of appearances. Virgo lends proverbial helping hand but is analytical about what to expect in return. When Libra decides to give, it usually is with no calculated thought of what is to come back. Virgo can make money with Libra and Libra can enter a labyrinth of intrigue with Virgo.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What you started comes to culmination, with rewards and obstacles. Concern might surface in connection with legal matter, partnership, joint enterprise. One close to you needs reassurance. Be diplomatic, especially about family affairs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Full-moon position and aspects point to disputes of minor nature which could bloom into big-time battles. Maintain control. Don't permit emotions to completely dominate. What creates aura of fear is actually of paper tiger variety. Know it and scoff.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accept added responsibility. Rewards, recognition will follow. Accent is on friends who argue, make promises and appeals. Heed counsel of older, experienced individual. Prestige is on the line. Goal is in sight. Don't be dissuaded by confused associates.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finish what you start. Aid one who confides problem. Adherence to Golden Rule will pay dividends. Aries, Libra persons might be involved. One is authority seems to be blocking your efforts. This is not really true. You will learn reasons — and you will understand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Stop feeling you should be here, there and everywhere. Forces tend to be scattered. Take stock. You may be spreading efforts too thin. Have something to say about your own destiny. Speak up — get to heart of matter.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cash flow could be restricted. There are details, including family or home situation, which need clarification. Combine logic and intuition. What appears solid obstacle is due to "melt." You will be beneficiary.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ride with tide. Don't believe all that you see. Surface indications now are apt to be deceptive. Sagittarian plays prominent role. Maintain low profile. Go soft and easy. Social contact can be valuable. But avoid pressing issues.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Low-key approach serves best purpose. Study Libra message. Unravel puzzle pieces. Be aware of fine points. Read between the lines. If observant, you glimpse full picture. Avoid basing actions on wishful thinking.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be ready for change, travel, variety. Gemini, Virgo persons could figure prominently. Accent is on emotional response. Strive to give logic equal time. If analytical, you avoid excessive costs. Friend could be sadly misinformed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.19): Your aspirations could create conflicts. Some claim you are assuming dictatorial powers. Others are equally vehement in your defense. Key now is to be diplomatic without being weak. Family member doeshave your best interests at heart.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb. 18): You may feel as if you are part of a dizzying whirl. Catch emotional breath. Stop and look —listen and learn. Relatives, neighbors may try to impose their opinions, desires. That's fine, buy you do have your own life to live.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Money situation requires more-than-usual attention. Curb tendency to spend too much for too little. Message should become increasingly clear. Capricorn, Cancer persons could be in picture. Count change!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, a natural teacher and a spiritual person. You are unorthodox, dymanic, artistic and moody. You are nobody's fool but you often fool yourself. Aquarius, Cancer persons seem to be drawn to you. December should be one of your most significant months of this year.

Union Hopes To Start Bargaining

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes (AFSCME) hopes to begin collective bargaining with State Labor Department officials in two weeks, a union spokesman said Wednesday.

Bob Kessler, the temporary AFSCME organizer in Nebraska, said negotiating committees for Locals 35 and 58 will meet this Sunday to form a joint negotiating body to represent the two local unions at the bargaining table. Kessler added that discussion of contract issues will also begin at that meeting.

Local 58 represents Labor Department employes from Omaha, while Local 35 draws it's membership from the remainder of the state.

Local 35 President Wendell Olsen of Lincoln said a survey of the membership indicated that wages and a cost-of-living clause are the top two concerns among Labor Department employes.

Other concerns identified through the survey, Olsen said, include:

—Reimbursement of employes for unused sick leave upon termination.

—Increasing the present mileage allowance of 12 cents per mile.

—Increased benefits and greater state contributions to employe life and health insurance programs.

—Promotions.

When negotiations begin, union officials said they expect Labor Department Director Gerald Chizek, State Personnel Director William C. Peters and Norm Krivosha, legal aide to Gov. J. James Exon, will represent the administration.

A 5- to 8-man team will be chosen from the two locals' negotiating committees to bargain for the union members. Kessler said he will be the chief negotiator for that joint committee.

Members of the Local 35 negotiating commitee named thus far are Olsen, Don McCord of Lincoln, Iris Thompson of Lincoln, Dorothy Thorngate of Lincoln, W. W. "Bud" Bruhn of Fremont, Lione Hansen of Fremont, Elaine Palm of Hastings, Lynn Pursel of Nebraska City and Virgil Hiatt of Norfolk. Two more committee members have yet to be named from the Panhandle and Lincoln areas.

Exon Group Files Updated Finance Report

Citizens for Exon has filed an updated financial report with the secretary of state's office which shows $228.97 in expenditures and no receipts since its initial report of Aug. 29.

The statement was filed by Loren Belker, chairman of the citizens unit. The committee helps meet expenditures incurred by Gov. J. James Exon in connection with his duties as governor.

The committee's balance as of Oct. 8 was $13,284.70.

Expenditures included a $100 contribution to the Nebraska Boys Ranch, $95.36 in dinner expenses for news media representatives who helped promote the highway safety program and $33.61 for letterheads and envelopes.

Man Chases Burglar Out Of Apartment

O. Edward Akin, of 720 So. 19th, awakened at 12:55 a.m. Wednesday and found a man carrying his tape player and about seven or eight tapes out of his apartment, according to police reports.

Akin told police he gave chase, waving his .357 magnum pistol, as the man dropped the articles and ran west on G St. Akin said he lost the man after several blocks.

Man Is Critically Hurt By Blast

A Lincoln man, Preston H. Reed, 32, of the Pioneer Trailer Ct., remained in critical condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital with burns suffered when the gas tank of a car on which he was welding exploded.

A second man, Charles Dye, 32, also of Pioneer Trailer Court in southeast Lincoln, was treated and released for minor burns suffered in connection with the incident.

The Lancaster County Sheriff's Office said the men were attempting to weld a trailer hitch on to the car when the heat ignited the gasoline, causing the tank to explode.

The men were working on the car at 1223 Skyview Lane.

Sheridan School Creative Arts Festival Planned

Lincolnites will get a chance to view Sheridan Elementary School students' creative works next week when the annual "creative arts festival" is held.

A public showing of the pupils' work is set for Oct. 18 from 7 to 9 p.m. The school is at 3100 Plymouth.

During the four days prior to public showing, each student will get a chance to participate in one of five creative ventures, working in weaving, sculpture, tie-dying, modeling or making "photo-grams."

Special demonstrations are also set for the public showing in such crafts as spinning, stitchery, quilting and glass-blowing.

The festival is sponsored by the Sheridan PTA.

Goodrich To Initiate Blind Unit Probe

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—State Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha said he will initiate an investigation of a governor's advisory committee which recommended new standards for the director of state services for the visually impaired.

Goodrich commented during an Omaha meeting of the Nebraska Council for the Blind, at which about 100 blind persons expressed support of Dean McDermott, the present director.

The state institutions advisory committee recommended recently that the director hold at least a master's degree. McDermott, director for four years, holds a bachelor's degree.

Council President Lavon Peterson of Omaha and several other blind persons spoke in behalf of McDermott, and a motion was made to launch an investigation.

Rick Agnew said the governor's committee violated open meetings laws when it made its vote of its recommendation behind closed doors. Agnew, who made the motion for a probe, also alleged that the committee failed to give adequate notice of the public meeting in Lincoln.

He said members of the council who attended the meeting had heard about it "by accident." Agnew also said the committee rejected a voice vote of blind persons about the recommendation before the final vote.

Goodrich told the group he is a member of a legislative committee on rules and regulations and that an investigation would be started.

The motion then was withdrawn, but the group unanimously passed a resolution to be sent to Gov. J. J. Exon spelling out grievances and support for McDermott.

Peterson told those attending that Nebraska, under McDermott, has had "the finest program we've ever had for blind people."

Peterson said McDermott's six years of experience in the field more than made up for the advantage of a master's degree. He said a recent poll by his group showed that 88 per cent of blind persons in Nebraska favored retaining McDermott.

McDermott attended the meeting but did not speak.

Big Red Fans Given Alternate Travel Routes

The Nebraska Department of Roads Information Division suggests that Nebraska football fans following the Cornhuskers to Columbia, Mo., Saturday for the Missouri game take one of two alternate routes to avoid traffic problems through Kansas City.

Repair work on the Paseo bridge in Kansas City has been the cause of numerous snarls because traffic has been reduced from six lanes to only two.

One alternate route suggested by the Department of Roads is to pass Kansas City International Airport on I-29 and take Highway 152 to the east.

That route joins Highway 291, heading south, and merges into I-70, which would allow motorists to avoid Kansas City proper and route through Independence, Mo., to Columbia.

Another alternate route, according to the Department of Roads, is all interstate traffic — staying on I-29 to Kansas City, taking I-35 east to I-435 south, leading into I-70 to Columbia.

Newsprint Pinch Has Benefits, Too

By The Associated Press

The newsprint shortage has forced the nation's newspapers to experiment with the kind and amount of news they offer. Some editors see unexpected benefits in the cutbacks they have had to make.

The Associated Press Managing Editors Association mailed questionnaires on the newsprint shortage and its effects to its members.

The APME survey showed that 295 of the 470 newspapers which replied cut some news from the paper. Others cut advertising or reduced circulation.

Almost 100 of the papers reported that there was a good side to the shortage. Fifty-two of the newspapers said they would not reinstate all of the material they cut because they discovered some was outmoded or unneeded. Thirty-three papers said the newsprint shortage caused tighter writing and editing and six papers said they received valuable response from readers as a result of the crunch.

"We realized that many 'sacred cows' were not so revered when their excommunication provoked little, if any, adverse reaction," said a spokesman for the Herald Dispatch of Huntington, W.Va.

The Review Times of Fostoria, Ohio, said it was using the shortage "as an excuse to make a number of changes we've been unable to make before." The Asbury Park, N.J., Press said the tight paper situation was "a great excuse to cut out traditional nonnews."

The Union, in Grass Valley, Calif., said it "cleaned up typography — eliminated space waste."

The newspapers also said they learned more about what people want to read.

"We learned that bridge column fans are fanatics," said the Minneapolis Star.

"We've found what we can drop and what we can't," agreed the Herald-Telephone of Bloomington, Ind. "Dropped half the comics one day and were deluged with protest. Response to other deletions hasn't been comparable."

Some papers said they had made plans in case the shortage — caused by strikes at mills and railroads in Canada — gets worse.

DeWitt H. Scott, executive editor of The Express of Easton, Pa., said he had a detailed plan of action in case further cutbacks are necessary.

"I think newspapers should have such battle plans ready just as they do for a racial riot, a blizzard, flood or other emergency," Scott said. "Above all, I think we should be forthright with our readers, telling them in front-page stories what we are doing and why. Part of our . . . planning, for instance, involves asking the readers to advise us on what they consider most expendable."

The Clearwater, Fla., Sun, however, said "reader response is a bad guide for eliminating most types of material. Perhaps we have benefitted from a more intense self-examination."

Most papers said the readers really didn't react to cutbacks. Only 39 editors reported overwhelmingly negative reaction from readers; many others said the readers weren't happy, but accepted the situation with understanding.

Things like the crossword puzzle, the comics, the horoscope and the bridge column drew the most protests, editors said.

The Minneapolis Tribune said it got 109 calls the first day after it dropped the crossword puzzle. It was restored. The Morning Record of Meriden, Conn., reinstated the horoscope after protests from readers.

The type and size of cutbacks varied with the size and location of the newspaper.

One of the survey questions asked newspapers which they would cut first: international news, national news, features and women's news, sports or local news. Of the 295 papers which responded that they had cut some news, 140 said they cut international news first, 35 said national news; 67 reported features and women's news, 14 said sports and 11 said local news. The remainder cut stock lists or TV schedules or other tabular material.

Another question asked the papers to specify the categories which they had cut.

Two-hundred twenty-one papers said they cut at least some syndicated feature material — things like opinion columns. The cuts ranged from an average of three columns of space a day in the smaller papers to an average of nearly five columns of space in papers with circulations from 75,000 to 200,000.

In other findings:

— 212 papers said they cut some wire service features.

Some newspapers — 199 of the 470 included in the total — said the paper shortage caused them to change their basic design.

Eight papers cut the size of photos; 44 reduced the size of headlines; 28 cut back on the amount of blank space around news or advertising; 11 made type smaller, and 10 made major changes in their editorial pages to include advertising or general news.

The survey found 201 newspapers using AP news summaries some or all of the time. The summaries, condensations of world, national and Washington news, were inaugurated by AP to help newspapers conserve space during the newsprint pinch.

Only 47 per cent of the newspapers with a circulation of over 200,000 said they cut the amount of news in the paper as a result of the shortage. Sixty per cent of the papers with a circulation under 25,000 cut news; 70 per cent with a circulation between 25,000 and 75,000 reduced the news, and 73 per cent of the 75,000 to 100,000 group made news cutbacks.

The cuts varied in size. In the under-25,000 circulation bracket, the typical reduction was 40 columns a day or 60 per cent of the size of the paper. In the over-200,000 category, the most common cutback was also 40 columns, but it comprised only 20 per cent of the space normally devoted to news.

Fewer than 9 per cent of the papers responding to the survey cut advertising, and ad reduction was more common in larger papers.

Senator Sam Cuts An Album Of Typical Tales

Charlotte, N.C. (UPI) — Sen. Sam Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, has made a recording to be released between Nov. 1 and Christmas.

The Columbia album was recorded at Ervin's Morganton home and features the senator telling stories about various subjects, including family recollections, moonshiners, court cases, and quoting the Bible and poetry.

'Public Should Pay'

Danbury, Conn. (UPI) — Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, says the public should finance political campaigns.

War Power Bill OKd By Senate

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Wednesday gave final approval to a bill limiting presidential warmaking powers. The vote was 75 to 20, far more than the two-thirds needed to override a threatened veto by President Nixon.

Approval came on a roll call vote about half an hour after news of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's resignation began circulating in the Senate chamber. A scheduled three-hour debate was cut short by about an hour.

The measure prohibits the President from committing troops to battle for more than 90 days without specific congressional authorization, and gives Congress power to end hostilities earlier than that by a simple majority vote not subject to veto.

Eagleton charged during a bitter debate with Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., floor manager of the measure, that the conference report considerably weakened the earlier Senate measure and was, in effect, "an open-ended blank check for 90 days of warmaking anywhere in the world on presidential authority alone."

"I helped give birth to this bill three years ago, but the baby has been kidnaped," Eagleton said. He complained specifically that a section stating the President was authorized to commit troops only in case of a direct attack on the United States or an attack on U.S. troops overseas was consigned to the preamble of the measure, making it legally meaningless.

Javits acknowledged that the conference had weakened that section, but maintained that other provisions left it "a real, active, substantive and effective restraint on the President. He must seek the consent of Congress to make war."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., agreed with Eagleton saying the bill actually gives the President powers that are no his under the Constitution.

Hruska Votes No On War Power Bill

Washington (UPI) — Nebraska Republican Sen. Roman Hruska was one of 20 senators voting against limiting presidential war-making powers Wednesday. The Senate passed the bill 75 to 20. Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., was in Argentina and did not vote.

House Votes To Set Up National Capital Enclave

Washington (AP) — The House voted Wednesday night to carve a federally run national capital enclave out of Washington, D.C. and turn the rest of the city largely over to self-government.

The capital enclave would include the Capitol, the White House, the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and several military installations. It would be run by a director appointed by the President.

The rest of the city would return to local self-government for the first time in nearly a century, to be run by a locally elected mayor and city council.

Congress would continue to have firm controls over the city's financing, and the President would continue to appoint its judges.

The House bill now must be compromised with a Senate version that would give the city a locally elected mayor and city council but makes no provision for a capital enclave.

Coffee Houses Remain A Tradition

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Economists seeking a solution to the world's inflation problems might find some sort of answer in the enduring miracle of the Viennese coffee house.

The miracle is how it manages to survive all these centuries catering to a clientele that really doesn't come in for a cup of coffee. Not that there's anything wrong with the coffee — it's probably among the best in the world.

But most patrons come to sit in the comfortable old arm chairs, read the free newspapers and magazines, argue art and politics, and enjoy the quaint custom of a fresh glass of water every half hour from the charming waiter even if, five hours later, they are still dawdling over their first demi-tasse.

At a corner table, a girl student worked away at her thesis on Medieval pulpit carving. The high-backed upholstered chairs along the walls were occupied by businessmen going over the morning papers distended from wooden frames and taken from the large rack near the door. The center of the room was given over to tourists writing postcards.

The high-ceiling old room, with its heavy draperies and long windows, suggested a university library gloriously awash with the aroma of "buchtel," Vienna's famous plum coffee cake, drifting from the kitchen. A cathedral calm prevailed, save when the savants grew disputatious or called out for the Danube Gunga Din.

In similar surroundings, Franz Schubert wrote his symphonies and, like Leonard Bernstein 150 years later, watched the critics dash off their reviews then waited for the papers to come up to read them.

He offers a dozen different kinds of coffee, including the classic "cup of gold," which is a touch more milk than coffee; "mocca brown," which is a touch more coffee than milk, and his masterpiece, "melange mit schlag," which is coffee, milk and great globs of whipped cream.

In the golden days of empire when the Strauss family sawed away at their schmaltzy glissandoes, Vienna boasted of more than 15,000 coffee houses. Now only a handful survive. Their spacious quarters in the high-rent districts have given way to branch banks and automobile showrooms.

"After the two world wars, when housing was difficult, people came to the coffee house to escape their drab, dingy rooms," Hawelka sighed. "Taxes were less. Life was cheap. One could settle for a shilling's profit a day. Then the government imposed heavy taxes on food and drink to finance the reconstruction from the war damage. We require bad times again to bring the people back."

"We still have the big old chairs," Hawelka smiled contentedly, "but the portions of buchtel and the coffee cups keep getting smaller and smaller. No one notices, perhaps, as long as the newspapers and the glasses of water remain a tradition."

Program For Release Before Trial Gets OK

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The Region II Crime Commission Wednesday approved and sent to the State Crime Commission a revised plan for a pre-trial release program for Lancaster County.

An earlier proposal for the program had smooth sailing until it was unexpectedly torpedoed at a meeting of the full State Crime Commission early this summer when Lincoln Police Chief Joe Carroll asked that it be tabled because he did not know if the program would work.

After proponents of the plan made several unsuccessful attempts to dislodge it, the full state commission finally sent it back to the regional crime commission until supporters of the Lincoln Bar Association-sponsored plan and Carroll could reconcile their differences.

Nate Holman, the new chairman of the bar association's pretrial release committee, said that meetings with Carroll had produced a plan the chief would approve.

Changes Outlined

Among the major changes in the program, according to Holman, are that it will now be under the aegis of the Lancaster Public Defender's Office rather than the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Law.

Holman said police will also have the authority to veto the release of any individual they feel will not return for arraignment or trial.

Under the program, for which $10,125 in federal funds is requested, three law students would investigate the suspects of misdemeanors and recommend that those who meet certain standards be released on their own recognizance.

The commission also approved a request from the Lincoln Police Department to install a sonic detection system that would alert police if a prisoner managed to escape from his cell into a crawl space above the jail.

Police discovered a planned escape in August in which prisoners had cut a hole in a ventilation duct that gave them access to the five-foot-high crawl space.

Lt. Eugene Armstead told the commission that if a prisoner managed to get into the crawl space, he could drop down into a corridor or rooms outside the jail area.

The commission also gave its approval to an application for $13,448 in federal funds to hire a "systems analyst" to help develop an automated record-keeping system, for police use.

The commission had given its approval to an earlier application for the same purpose, but that application was withdrawn when police discovered that current funds for programs of that nature were temporarily unavailable.

Panel Says Its Role On Study Is Catalyst

At its Wednesday morning meeting the Region II Crime Commission appeared to be in agreement that its role in implementing its jail study should be that of a catalyst.

"I think the fear is that this (report) will just lay on a shelf somewhere," commission chairman Roger Larson said.

The commission agreed to send copies of the report to the Lincoln City Council, the Lancaster County Board, the County-City Building committee, and the police task force of the City-County Implementation Commission.

Members agreed that the commission could "keep prodding" to make sure that at least some recommendations in the 17-page report by HOC & Associates, a St. Louis architectural firm, would be carried out.

"This (the report) is so broad that it would be utopia if we could get all this," member Maurice Russell commented. Russell said that if only a portion of the recommendations were carried out it would be great progress.

At least one member of the commission was optimistic that the report will result in change. Member Robert Colin, who is also chairman of the county board, said "it's not going to sit on a shelf, I can guarantee that."

A note of pessimism was sounded by member Sue Bailey, who is also a member of the City Council. She said she brought three previoulsy-written reports to the commission meeting that contain much the same recommendations as those in the new jail study.

Bailey has been involved in efforts to improve programs and facilities in the city jail for the past eight years.

HOLMES PARK . . . parking area flooded.

Heavy Rains Flood Spur Road To Roca

Salt Creek overflowed its banks near Roca Wednesday after 4.30 inches of rain, causing the spur road to Roca from U.S. 77 to be closed.

No word was available from the State Department of Roads on the condition of the road Wednesday afternoon.

The National Weather Service in Lincoln said Wednesday morning that Salt Creek was four feet above its flood stage of 19 feet near Roca.

The Department of Roads said Wednesday afternoon that 84th St. between Adams and Highway 6 was covered with three to four inches of water, and that traffic was moving slowly.

The Weather Service was predicting that Salt Creek would go above its flood stage in Lincoln Wednesday afternoon. However, Hal Schroeder, general manager of the Lower Platte South Natural Resource District said Salt Creek was "staying within its levies" in the Lincoln area.

There was some flooding of Holmes Park near the Homes Park Reservoir, Schroeder said, although 70th St. was clear of flooding.

Schroeder said that Holmes had more water in it Wednesday than at any time since it was built ten years ago. The Weather Service reported over 3 inches of rain in that southeast section of Lincoln Wednesday morning.

Schroeder said that the ground has become completely saturated from rain over the last two weeks, and any further rain will run off into the NRD reservoirs. The reservoirs release the water slowly to Salt Creek, he said.

Wednesday, he said, the creek was being watched closely for damming under bridges caused by collections of floating debris and trees.

The Weather Service was also predicting overflows near Ashland Wednesday night. The Department of Roads said Wednesday afternoon that Highway 63 in Ashland was closed where it crosses Salt Creek.

Other roads that closed Wednesday included the old U.S. 77 south of Lincoln Memorial Park; Saltillo Road; Havelock Ave. at Steven's Creek; and the blacktop road from U.S. 77 to Hickman. The State Patrol said there was seven to eight inches of water over U.S. 77 south of Crete, but that the road was not closed.

Lincoln police said that 14th St. near U.S. 77 was closed where Salt Creek had overflowed, and that there was water on N.W. 48th north of the main entrance to the Air Base.

The Weather Service in Lincoln said the total rainfall for Lincoln for the 24-hour period ending at 7 p.m. Wednesday night was 2.47 inches.

Seed Supplies In Corn, Sorghum Appear Good

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Seed supplies for sorghum and corn growers appear to be pretty good for 1974 in spite of wet weather, but soybean seed supplies may be endangered if the weather doesn't improve soon, according to seed specialists.

West Zart of N C Plus seeds in Lincoln reported that his company's seed supplies of corn and milo appeared to be in good condition. Most of the milo production grown for seed has been harvested in southern areas and farmers in this area are getting the seed corn out under trying conditions.

"We haven't run any germination tests yet, but our growers are picking corn by using wagons equipped with rear bumpers so they can push the ears out of the field if necessary," he said.

Harvesting of early varieties is already completed and harvesting of late varieties is underway now with some types of late corn still high enough in moisture. A hard freeze could possibly damage germination, observers say.

Demand Way Up

"We don't see any reason to cry wolf at this point on corn or milo seed. Demand is way up with sales about double what they were last year in terms of early fall orders. We may have a problem with soybean seeds which we contract for, but it is too early to tell yet," Zart said.

Dean Lancaster of the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association said he had been inspecting soybean fields, but that very few seed fields had been harvested as yet.

"We need a frost to kill the molds developing and two weeks of sunny weather to dry things out. We won't know until we can run germination tests how the seed quality has been affected by this rain," he said.

The good news about the availability of sorghum seed for 1974 was about the only bright spot on the farm crop front in Nebraska Wednesday.

Threat Of Snow

Heavy rain in most of the state plus the threat of snow was rapidly turning a bumper crop into a hopeless mess that was all too similar to last year's harvest time problems.

Wheat is being damaged by heavy rains that are washing out seed, ditching fields and preventing completion of fall seeding of the bread grain crop.

Corn was reported to be sprouting on the ear with some discoloration of corn from weather related molds developing.

Soybeans were reported to be sprouting and molding in the pods which were soaked with unwanted rains.

Dry bean crops in the western end of the state were 75% harvested, but 15% of the crop is believed lost and much of the rest is of poor quality due to weather problems and the presence of nightshade berries in the beans.

Lifting Halted

Milo is sprouting on the heads and some seed is dropping to the ground as wind and rain batter the crop.

In spite of the weather problems, the feed grains still retain most of their feed value if the grain can be harvested and stored in silos as wet grain or dried and stored in good tight bins according to Dr. Don Hanway, chairman of the UNL Department of Agronomy.

"This is still good feed. Even the milo that was harvested this spring proved to be useful livestock feed. We need to emphasize that farmers can still preserve most of the value of this crop even if the exporters don't want to buy it," he said.

Export buyers have avoided buying any milo showing weather damage because of customers who use milo as a human food instead of livestock feed. This has resulted in sharp discounts for damaged milo at terminal grain markets.

Nebraska Native Honored

Washington (AP) — A Nebraska native, Dr. Harold E. Edgerton, 70, was one of 11 recipients Wednesday of a National Medal of Science, presented for outstanding contributions made in the fields of physical, biological, mathematical or engineering sciences.

Dr. Edgerton, a native of Fremont, is professor emeritus of electrical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He attended high school at Aurora, and was graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1925.

Link Between Cases Doubted

Wilber (UPI) — Saline County Sheriff Edward Prokop said he seriously doubts whether there is any connection between the disappearance of an elderly Wilber couple and the apparent slaying of a rural Culbertson couple.

However, Prokop said he plans to confer more with authorities investigating the apparent slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hoyt to see whether there are any similarities between the Hoyt case and that of Frank Oliva, 76, and his wife, Mary, 79.

"There are all kinds of possibilities," Prokop said. "At this time, there seriously doesn't seem like there is any connection between the two cases."

Mr. and Mrs. Oliva were last seen by neighbors the evening of July 28. The Hoyts were last seen during a family dinner at their home Sept. 23.

A ring found on a finger of one of two hands washed up on the face of Medicine Creek Dam at Harry Strunk Lake near Cambridge has been identified as belonging to Mrs. Hoyt.

Fronter County Sheriff Lannie Roblee said in McCook that he was still awaiting fingerprint results from the State Patrol and a pathologist's report from North Platte in an effort to secure positive identification of the portions of human remains found in Harry Strunk Lake.

Emergency Railroad Services Centers Operation In McCook

McCOOK, Neb. (AP)— McCook has become the center of an eight-state operation with the arrival of the Hulcher Emergency Railroad Services.

The firm's four Caterpillars, two flat-bed trucks and two vans moved into the former Curly Olney building. Supt. Leroy Kramer said the firm, seven years old, has 12 divisions in the United States and this one was moved to McCook from Longmont, Colo.

Foreman Bob Adams said the largest boom cannot be used in the state because it is too heavy to transport on Nebraska highways.

Adams said the McCook division will answer a call for assistance from any railroad at any location within a 10 to 12-hour drive. He said it can serve the Dakotas, eastern Wyoming, western Nebraska, eastern Colorado, western Kansas and possibly northern Oklahoma and New Mexico.

He said McCook was picked for the division because of its central location between St. Joseph, Mo., and the Rocky Mountains and the Canadian border.

At full strength, the division will have 10 fulltime men and will hire 15 to 18 extra men when it is on call.

Adams said the firm has no contracts with railroads but is on a call basis. He said the service had been done in the past by general contractors because they had the heavy equipment.

The Hulcher company has been in the pipeline business for 30 years and still maintains a division for this work. It is set up to take care of other emergencies such as aviation and chemicals.

Kramer said Hulcher has a separate firefighting division which can be on location in 15 hours either by highway or air.

Improvements To Airport OKd For Columbus

The federal government has approved a $580,000 airport improvement project for Columbus, according to Gov. J. James Exon.

The project will include construction of a runway apron for aircraft parking, concrete taxiways, and instrument landing system for a northwest-southeast runway, relocation of existing buildings, construction of an access road and parking lot and lighting for the wind cone.

Funding of the project will be 75 per cent federal 10 per cent state and 15 per cent local.

Barbecue Picture Identification Wrong

Both men helped with the preparation of the meal served at a money-raising affair for the First United Methodist Church of Waverly.

Wood Nominated For Old West Post

Washington (AP) — Warren Clay Wood of Gering, Neb., was nominated by President Nixon Wednesday as federal co-chairman of the Old West Regional Commission. Wood, 32, has been serving as a special assistant on the commission, which covers the five-state area of Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming. Wood has been a consultant to the Envrionmental Protection Agency and previously was a legislative assistant to Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb.

$100,000 School Bond Defeated

Scottsbluff (AP) — Voters in Victory Hill School District No. 67 at Scottsbluff turned down a proposed $100,000 bond issue. Proceeds would have been used for construction of a new cafeteria and gymnasium and remodeling of some existing classrooms. The vote was 91 against and 62 in favor.

Creighton Airport Grant OKd

Washington (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration has announced a grant of $138,975 to build an airport at Creighton, Neb. The money will go for land development and clearance, construction of a 3,100 foot runway and other work.

Nebraskans Score At Rodeo

Plattville, Wis. — University of Nebraska Rodeo Club members were tall in the saddle at the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association sponsored rodeo hosted here by the Plattville branch of the University of Wisconsin. Mary Alm of Wahoo tied for first in barrel racing, which places her second in the regional competition, only 2.5 points off the lead. Tom Frazer of North Loup tied for fifth in bareback riding, while Tom Mulligan of Wood Lake tied for third in ribbon roping. Third place in the bull dogging contest went to Cliff Reichenberg of North Platte.

Four Seek Peru Queen Title

Peru — Candidates for Peru State College's 1973 homecoming queen are Denise Beaumont Mabie of Nebraska City, Patty McLaughlin of Papillion, Barbara Wilkinson of Clatonia and Patty Johnson of Humboldt. Coronation ceremonies are scheduled for halftime at the Kearney-Peru grid contest Saturday afternoon. Other homecoming festivities include an 11 a.m. parade, alumni reunions, 7:30 p.m. drama production, and a 9:30 p.m. dance.

Woman Urged For High UNO Post

Omaha (UPI) — University of Nebraska-Omaha Chancellor Ronald W. Roskens said he will ask the Borad of Regents Friday to appoint Dr. Elaine Hess as assistant chancellor for academic affairs. Dr. Hess would become the highest ranking woman at UNO. She currently is serving as assistant professor of sociology and has headed the chancellor's commission on the status of women.

Perplexing Question

That's the question facing Nebraska coach Joe Cipriano as the Huskers begin practice on Monday with 7 of the 15 players listed as freshmen. But the real question is, with NU enjoying one of its top recruiting years ever, how will those talented youngsters fit into the Nebraska program?

"We're going to give most of our freshmen a lot of playing time in December," Cipriano said. "We're going to see who's come along the best, but they all will get a lot of time in with the possibility that one or two will start.

"These freshmen better be eager because for what they lack in playing time, they better make up by showing a lot of competitiveness," he warned.

Some of the promising first-year men include Nebraska's Bob Siegel and Rick Seidel, Iowa's Mark Enright, Texas' Ron Taylor, Colorado's Phil Fitzsimmons. But Cipriano notes that freshmen traditionally have more problems with their defensive work than any other aspect of switching to major college competition.

"Over the years, the freshmen programs have stressed learning and defense while the varsity programs have stressed getting ready for games," he said. "The freshman programs would always work all year on fundamentals and working on defense with the idea of learning rather than getting ready for a certain team like the varsity does.

Easier For Big Men

"It's easier for a big man who's a freshman to play in the Big Eight than the smaller man," he continued. "Last year, for example, Oklahoma's Alvan Adams, who was the player-of-the-year, was a freshman (at 6-9), but now many Alvan Adams are there?"

Cipriano added that the bigger players generally maintain advantages over the smaller ones in rebounding and inside shooting — two areas that the Huskers experienced difficulty last season.

"These kids that we have may be the youngest in the league when you count the number of freshmen and returning lettermen we have," he said. "And you can't make up for a lack of experience.

"But I will say this, that we've got more talent than we've had in the last two years, but they don't have the experience."

Although the veteran Huskers such as forwards Steve Erwin and Brendy Lee will have more than enough competition from the freshmen, Cipriano points out that both Lee and Erwin fit into the NU picture.

"Our returning lettermen are certainly going to see a lot of playing time," he said. "They have experience in their favor and that will be a big help in our early games in December."

With the emphasis on youth this season, Cipriano knows what faces him in the month before the Huskers host the Yugoslavia national team on Nov. 20.

"We're going to have to spend more time on fundamentals than in past years," he said. "And we're going to strive for consistency and learn to play together. We've got the talent but we've got to be a team."

METS REPEAT MIRACLE

Reds Lose NL Playoff

. . . NY WINS, 7-2

The New York Mets, climaxing their second "miracle" in five years, won the National League pennant Wednesday by defeating the Cincinnati Reds, 7-2, and almost everything was the same as 1969 from the cast of heroes to the tearing up of the Shea Stadium field at the end. Only the celebration afterward was different. It was more subdued this time.

Cleon Jones, Tom Seaver, Tug McGraw and Ed Kranepool —some of the stars of the 1969 miracle—were the heroes of Wednesday's victory as the Mets culminated one of the greatest comebacks in baseball history by taking the Reds in five games.

"It was a long uphill struggle and by God I'm glad we got here," said Seaver, the winning pitcher in the finale with ninth inning relief help from McGraw. "We had tremendous frustration this season. God only knows what we went through with all the injuries. It's just fantastic the way we didn't panic, the way we stuck together and pulled it out."

Jones, a disappointment in the first half of the season but a star during the stretch run for the East Division title, collected three hits, including the big fifth inning double, and also singled home the Mets' last run in the sixth.

Seaver, the Mets' No. 1 pitcher all season and working on three days rest for only the seventh time, battled the Reds valiantly for 8 1-3 innings, allowing only seven hits, but had to be bailed out of a ninth inning jam by McGraw, who came on to retire Joe Morgan and Dan Driessen in succession with the bases loaded.

Kranepool, subbing in the outfield for Rusty Staub who injured his right shoulder in Tuesday's game while making a spectacular catch, also contributed handsomely with a two-run single in the first inning.

It was Jones, however, who came through with the big hit as the Mets, befuddled all season by Jack Billingham, finally broke loose against the Reds' tough righthander in the fifth to break the game open.

Wayne Garrett, hitless in his last 19 at bats in the series, started the rally with a line double to right-center and then rookie third baseman Driessen committed a mental error which may have cost the Reds the game.

Felix Millan, attempting to sacrifice Garrett to third, bunted the ball to Billingham who threw to third in an attempt to get Garrett. The ball seemed to have Garrett beaten but Driessen, a converted outfielder, apparently forgot it was not a force play and tagged the base instead of Garrett.

That put runners on first and third and Jones followed by lining a double on one bounce off the left-center field fence to score Garrett with the tie-breaking run. Don Gullett, a lefthander, was brought in to relieve Billingham and John Milner drew a walk on a 3-2 pitch to load the bases.

Kranepool was the scheduled batter for New York, but manager Yogi Berra sent up Willie Mays to pinch-hit. As Mays' name was announced the crowd of 50,323 erupted into a roar and Reds' manager Sparky Anderson quickly summoned righthander Clay Carroll to pitch to the 42-year-old veteran.

Mays swung at Carroll's first pitch and hit a little chopper to the left of the plate which Carroll fielded but his throw to the plate was too late to get Millan sliding home. Jerry Grote then hit what appeared to be a double play ball to first baseman Tony Perez, who threw home for a forceout, but catcher Johnny Bench's return throw to first was in the dirt and Grote was safe.

A forceout at second on a ball which dropped safely into centerfield got another run home and Bud Harrelson capped the rally with a runscoring single.

Kranepool's hit in the first inning came with the bases loaded and put the Mets ahead 2-0, but the Reds got a run in the third when Morgan doubled, moved to third when Jones' bobbled the ball in right and scored on a sacrifice fly by Driessen.

The Reds, who had Seaver in trouble repeatedly in the early going, tied the score in the top of the fifth on a double by Rose, an infield out and a two-out single by Perez.

Orioles Square Series

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland A's are fighting among themselves again and the Baltimore Orioles are doing what they do best—coming from behind to win ball games.

As a result, the American League Playoff series once again is deadlocked at two victories apiece with the deciding game coming up on Thursday.

While the A's looked on in bewilderment as Vida Blue started to come apart, the Orioles trotted out a couple of their lesser stars—light-hitting catcher Andy Etchebarren and second baseman Bobby Grich—and by the time the dust had cleared at the Oakland Coliseum Wednesday, Baltimore had a 5-4 victory and the A's were busy saying ugly things to each other.

The A's thrive on controversy. It's a hallmark of their success over the last three seasons, so no one among their followers was all that concerned.

"We'll come back tomorrow (Thursday)," said Reggie Jackson, thus far a hitting bust in the best-of-five Playoffs to determine the A.L. championship.

Andy Etchebarren, who complained during the regular season that he wasn't being used often enough, cracked a three-run homer to tie the score at 4-4 in the seventh and Grich, a slick fielder trying to make the Orioles forget about the trade that sent Dave Johnson away, hit a solo homer in the eighth for the winning run.

Grant Jackson, almost as obscure as Etchebarren and Grich, unless you are a rabid Baltimore fan, tacked on 2 2-3 innings of hitless relief to pick the Orioles off the floor and give them life.

Baltimore's clutch victory thus sets up Thursday's game as the one which will decide who plays the New York Mets in the World Series. Jim Hunter, the second playoff game winner, will pitch for Oakland and Doyle Alexander, winner of 12 of 20 late season decisions, will start for Baltimore.

Oddsmakers, sticking with a man who has won 20 or more games in each of the last three seasons over a pitcher who hasn't won 20 games in two years, have installed the A's, defending World Champions, as 3-2 favorites.

But Grich didn't have to be sorry the way Jackson was pitching. Jackson was unbeaten in eight decisions this year and also had nine saves. He is a lefthander who posted a 1.90 ERA this year in 80 1-3 innings of relief.

The game started out as if the A's meant to make it a rout. Blue held the Orioles hitless in the first three innings and was in front, 3-0, thanks to a second inning rally.

Ray Fosse, 0-6 in the playoffs, delivered both runners with another double to left and came home himself on a double by Dick Green, who was hitless in eight appearances. That finished Palmer, who had held the A's to five hits in a 6-0 victory last Saturday, and brought on Bob Reynolds.

Reynolds gave up a run in 4 2-3 innings, Fosse delivering it with a sacrifice fly. Tenace started the sixth with a walk, raced to third on a single by Davalillo and scored for 4-0 when Fosse hit a long fly to left.

DARYL WHITE . . . Gains 117 Pounds In 10 Years.

White Too Big For Football At 12

. . . HUSKER WANTS TO GET KIDS OFF STREETS

Standing 6 feet, 4 inches tall, weighing 247 pounds, and capable of running 40 yards in 4.9 seconds, Nebraska offensive tackle Daryl White is either a coach's dream or nightmare — depending on which team he's coaching.

But just think of the poor neighborhood Pop Warner league coach back in East Orange, N.J., a few years ago who had White around, but couldn't use him.

It seems that to play in Pop Warner football, you have to weigh less than 115 pounds. However, 12-year-old Daryl weighed 130.

"There was no way I could lose 15 pounds," White says. "But I really used to love to play baseball. I was too big to play Pop Warner League football, so I played baseball all day."

White was an all-state first baseman at East Orange High School and got a couple of tryouts with the Orioles and Pirates, but after finally getting into a football suit as a high school freshman, he began to attract a lot of college scouts.

There were a lot of letters and as many questionnaires to fill out, he said, and eventually scholarship offers from about 25 schools. White said he visited the campuses of six of those schools and finally narrowed his choice down to Ohio State and Nebraska — ironically the Nos. 1 and 2 teams in his senior year.

The Huskers' offensive captain says he has no regrets, despite the fact that the school of his choice is trailing the Buckeyes in the polls.

"I'm really glad I came here, now," he explains. "Rich (Outland Trophy-winning middle guard Rich Glover) and I got to be kinda close after we made the trip to Lincoln together and when he said he was coming, I decided I'd come, too."

Linemen probably don't get any where near the publicity they deserve, — even more so in the case of offensive linemen. But White says that doesn't really bother him.

"When you're a freshman, you get tried both ways," he explains, "but I just never liked defense. I've always been an offensive lineman and I think that's my spot."

"I like pass protection blocking better than rush blocking," he continues, "because it puts more of a challenge on you. In pass pro blocking, the defensive man has a much greater advantage because he can use his hands and you can't, and he can use fakes and jukes to get around you. In running blocks, you just fire out and the better man wins."

That White & Co. have been the better men most of the time this fall is born out by the fact that the Huskers have outrushed their opponents by a 247-184 average through four games and that quarterback Dave Humm has yet to be thrown for a loss in 1973.

Last year, Humm was thrown for a total of 205 yards in losses and to Daryl, that indicates how much the NU offensive line has improved.

"We're just better, that's all, he says. "We've got more unity this year because last year we had a lot of guys who hadn't played much together. This year, everybody helps each other and knows what the other guy is going to do — that's what makes it so good.

"There's no dropoff in talent either," he continues. "If anyone gets hurt, the second guy can come in and do the job. That's the way it's gotta be, too, because if just one guy breaks down, the play won't work."

For instance, White says former Oklahoma great Raymond Hamilton is the toughest opponent he's faced in a game.

"Raymond was big and extremely quick, but what made him good was that he read real good," White says. "The draw fake is supposed to make the defensive lineman think there's going to be a pass — he (Hamilton) just wouldn't fall for it."

However, as tough as Hamilton was, White says: "Dutton is bigger than Raymond, stronger than Raymond and quicker than Raymond. John Dutton is the roughest I've ever gone against."

Daryl will celebrate his 22nd birthday Friday, the day before the Huskers open the Big Eight season at Missouri, but the conference season is more important right now.

"The Big Eight is really going to be rough," he says. "There are really no easy teams in our league. We can't look ahead to anyone, it's just going to have to be a week-to-week thing."

An excellent pro prospect, many pro scouts say he's a cinch to be a first-round draft choice in this winter's National Football League draft. After a pro career, he says he wants to go back to the old neighborhood in New Jersey and try to help straighten things out.

"I want to go back home to teach little kids how to improve themselves and show them how important it is to get an education," he explains.

"Right now, it's kinda messed up back there. There's a lot of dope around and little kids hanging around the streets trying to be 'hip,' " he continues. "I want to be able to help them make something out of their lives and show them why they can't hang around the streets all their lives."

Rain Forces NU Indoors

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska lost a day of practice on natural grass Wednesday, but aside from that, Husker head coach Tom Osborne showed little disappointment over the rainy weather.

"It didn't hurt us too badly," he said in reference to the heavy rain that forced his Huskers inside for most of the two-hour session.

"The defense was handicapped the most," he added, "because we worked them first and it was raining so hard that we couldn't go outside with them.

"But by the time we got to the offense, it had let up enough that we were able to go out to work on our passing game.

Under rainy conditions the Huskers go to a different style of football, a Spalding DryTan. "It's a little tackier and a little easier to handle," Osborne noted.

The team on offense gets to choose the kind of ball it wants to use.

The Huskers had hoped to be able to work out all week on the natural grass practice fields with the game at Missouri being the only one that the Huskers will play on grass this season.

But the prospect of getting back onto the grass practice fields appeared dim even for Thursday, thus giving the Huskers only Monday and Tuesday to acclimate themselves to the different footing.

Although admitting there isn't much that can be done about controlling the weather, Osborne said he was hoping for dry weather Saturday at Columbia.

"I think good weather helps allow the better team to win," he pointed out. "I'm not sure which is the better team, but bad weather can be an equalizer and often allows a team that is not the better team to win."

NU Unanimous Pick

With the exception of the UCLA game when United Press International's Charlie Smith picked the Bruins, Nebraska has been a unanimous choice each week of the college football forecasters for The Associated Press and UPI.

It's that way again with Smith, Herschell Nissenson and Will Grimsley, both of The Associated Press, all picking Nebraska to defeat Missouri.

Smith predicts a 14-10 score, commenting, "Could be an upset if Missouri plays errorless football, but the Cornhuskers always seem to have just enough when it counts."

Seeing a 24-13 Husker victory, Nissenson says, "These Big Eight rivals have been playing since 1892 and Nebraska's 62-0 romp last year was the series' biggest rout. Missouri wants revenge . . . but gets a loss instead."

Menefee Wins With Decision

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

"I thought I could have taken him out in the second round," Menefee said following his bout. "But I had a tough fight up in Omaha on Thursday and got a broken nose from that affair so I wasn't really ready for this one.

In his Thursday fight, Menefee won a decision over Omaha Golden Gloves champion Jeff Parker . . . who lost Wednesday night to Garth Bauer of Petersburg, another former Golden Gloves champion.

Menefee, bobbing and weaving, carried the fight to Schrage, 132, slipping inside and connecting with several sharp combinations before the Petersburg boxer could move away. When Schrage tried combinations on Menefee, the Lincolnite absorbed the blows on his arms or else slipped the punches and countered with crisp ones of his own.

"I think I had him in trouble in the second," Menefee said. "But I just couldn't keep the pace up. I've also changed my style a little this year. That might've had something to do with it."

Last year while fighting in the district tournament, Menefee was content to stay at a distance and rely on his jab. This year, he has started to carry the fight to the inside.

"I find I have a little more power once I get in there," he explained. "I try and dig in on the inside then give it everything I've got to collect a knockout. Randy (Nelsen, Easterday Boxing Club trainer and coach) worked out with Ernie Terrell (nationally ranked heavyweight) when he was here and was convinced about fighting inside. So we changed over."

Menefee said he was confident that this year he would win the Midwest title and earn a trip to the National Golden Gloves tournament. But he's dropping down in weight class to do it.

"I'm trying for 125," he said seriously. "I want a crack at Dave Paxton (two-time Midwest champion) and the only way I'm going to get it is if I drop down. He won't come up.

"There's a chance that I may get to fight him on the 18th (of October) in (South) Sioux City," he said eagerly. "I just hope I can get down to that weight. I was 129 last week, so I think I can."

Only two TKOs were recorded on the 11-bout card before an estimated 150 fans — one by David Trice, 170, Easterday, who connected on James Bray of the MSU Boxing Club at 1:42 of the second round, and the other by Steve Krause, 156, also of Easterday, against Charles Dubose, 149, MSU, at 1:53 of the second.

4 — Mike Green, 132, Foxhole, dec. Ron Nelson, 129, Easterday.

Oakland Favored In Final AL Game

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The Oakland Athletics have been made 7-5 favorites to the win the fifth and deciding game of the American League playoffs over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Reno Turf Club said Wednesday it would go with Oakland because it felt Athletic pitcher Jim Hunter was superior to Baltimore hurler Doyle Alexander.

Tiger Workout 'Average', Onofrio

Coach Onofrio, asked about the workouts, said, "I really don't know how else to describe it, other than saying it was very average."

Prep Club Uses 12 Players

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

It was just a matter of time before Arkansas' notorious 12-man pass play trickled down to the prep football world where anything and everything can and does happen.

Oklahoma preps were the first to jab at how Arkansas got away with scoring the winning touchdown with 12 players against Iowa State less than two weeks ago.

With 20 seconds left and McGuinness protecting a 14-7 lead against Classen High, also of Oklahoma City, the winners sent in three down linemen, five linebackers, two cornerbacks and two safeties — 12 players — to defend against a possible, but unlikely 98-yard Classen touchdown.

When McGuinness coach Ron Marvel was asked if he'd noticed it, he replied: "Hell, we put 'em in. The officials weren't going to notice anything and I knew I could prove it. We used 12 for three straight plays."

Such tactics and remarks likely won't humor everyone. But maybe the 12-man picks that some wag put on our desk to go with 8 and 11-man picks will.

In the state's feature games this weekend, it's Omaha South over Omaha Burke, Norris over Centennial, Sandy Creek over Sutton, Plainview over Stanton, Randolph over Neligh and Seward over Schuyler in an upset.

The bogus 12-man picks handed to us mimic our style and forsee Moon over Miami, Bridge over Troubled Water, Head over Heels, Water over the Dam, Somewhere over the Rainbow, Fork over the Cash . . . and, according to the sheet, Wrong over Right in an upset.

To more serious games:

Lincoln Pius X at Omaha Holy Name, Thursday night — The 'Bolts can't afford to stumble while pointing for their Oct. 26 showdown at unbeaten and unscored upon Omaha Gross.

Lincoln High v. Lincoln Northeast, Friday night, Seacrest Field — The Links need to generate an offense to match a solid defense.

Lincoln Southeast at Grand Island, Friday night — The Islanders have trouble winning the close games and the Knights must prove they can beat a good team on the road.

Fremont at Lincoln East, Saturday night — Difficult as it may seem to believe, Fremont —Big 10 champions six times in the last seven years — will be 0-5 after this one.

The showdown of the week is third-ranked Class C Sutton's invasion of top-ranked Sandy Creek. "I think you can call both teams powerhouses and I would agree that the winner of this game has a good jump on the state championship," says Sandy Creek coach Warren Washburn.

"This game is a lot like the one we had with Nelson last year when both teams were 5-0 going into it," recalls Washburn. "It was 6-6 at half and we scored twice in the fourth quarter to win, 18-6. I expect the same type of contest. There should be a tremendous amount of fans."

Last week's mark was 126-44-2 for .741, bringing the season's total to 562-206-18 for .730.

In other feature games, it's Ansley over Sargent, Arapahoe over Elwood, Columbus over Hastings, Holdrege over Cozad, Crete over York, Fairbury over Nebraska City, Omaha Gross over Falls City and Hildreth over Kearney Catholic, Paxton over Mullen and Wheatland over Trenton.

Kings Tumble To Bulls

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Chet Walker pumped in 29 points and Norm Van Lier added 25, to offset a 42-point performance by Nate Archibald, and the Chicago Bulls buried the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 105-90 in a National Basketball Association opener Wednesday night.

Archibald, the NBA's leading scorer, got off to a fast start with 16 points in the first quarter. The Kings opened up a 26-14 lead, but the Bulls, led by Walker, Van Lier and Dennis Awtrey, quickly moved in front in the second quarter and maintained control the final 24 minutes.

Defense was a major factor in the Bulls' victory, forcing the Kings into 29 turnovers. In the second quarter, Chicago stopped the Kings with 12 shots from the field. For the game, Kansas City got off only 70, compared to 96 by Chicago.

Texas, OU Kickoff Time May Change

Dallas (AP) — The deciding game of the American League playoffs Thursday will also decide the starting time for Saturday's nationally televised intersectional football game in Dallas between sixth-ranked Oklahoma and 13th-ranked Texas.

Should Oakland defeat Baltimore, kickoff will be at noon CDT.

If Baltimore wins, kickoff will be approximately 3 p.m., CDT.

Ineligible Netter Seeks Reversal

The case of the disqualified tennis player was aired Wednesday in Lancaster County District Court.

Lancaster County District Judge William Hastings took under advisement the request of Omaha Westside High School tennis player John Freeman for a restraining order against the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA).

Freeman seeks to overturn an NSAA ruling which made him and other players ineligible for interscholastic competition because they competed in an outside tourney after a cutoff date set by NSAA.

Freeman testified he participated with his father in the Nebraska Closed Tennis Tournament after Aug. 20, the date set as the start of the tennis season for high school participants.

An NSAA exception to the outside participation rule permits competition with non-high school members within a club to which a student belongs. Freeman contends he falls within the exception because of his membership in the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Leslie T. Chamberlin, NSAA executive secretary, said he was asked by Omaha Westside's athletic director if Freeman's participation violated association rules.

Chamberlin said it was a violation but said the athletic director made the actual determination of ineligibility.

Girls Volleyball Tourney Slated

By Associated Press

The state high school volleyball tournament for girls will be held Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 at Nebraska Western College in Scottsbluff, according to fall schedules reported by the Nebraska School Activities Association.

Leading up to the state meet will be eight district meets in Classes A and B, and 16 district meets in Classes C and D.

Playoffs will be held to determine the eight state meet entries in each of Classes C and D.

Among boy athletes, the season's first state-level competition will be the cross country meet, to be held at the Kearney Country Club Nov. 2.

To pare the field for the state meet, four district meets will be held in Class A, and six meets in each of Classes B and C. District meets are to be held Oct. 26 and 27.

The state gymnastics meet for boys will be held at Lincoln East High Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.

Four district meets — two in Omaha and one each in Lincoln and Grand Island — will be held during the period of Nov. 14-17.

1. LIFETIME QUALITY AND ROAD HAZARD GUARANTEE. All passenger tires are guaranteed for the life of the original tread against road hazards and defects in workmanship and material under normal driving conditions, except repairable punctures. Adjustments will be prorated on tread wear based on the current selling price plus Federal Excise Tax.
2. TREAD WEAR-OUT GUARANTEE. All passenger tires are guaranteed for tread life for the number of months specified. If wear-out occurs within the specified period, in exchange for the tire, we will replace it charging the current selling price plus Federal Excise Tax less a set dollar allowance. A tread worn tire is one with 2/32 or less tread remaining.

Stocks Sharply Lower

New York (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's resignation sent stock market prices sharply lower in late trading Wednesday, but analysts said a downward move had been expected anyway in the light of the market's recent strong gains.

The analysts predicted that, after some further profit taking and readjustments, the market would resume its generally upward moves, unless a serious controversy occurred between Congress and President Nixon over Agnew's successor.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed down 13.62 at 960.57. It had been down a little under six points when the announcement came within the last hour of trading.

Declining Big Board issues at closing had a 3-to-1 lead over gainers in a volume of 19.01 million shares, compared with 19.44 million shares on Tuesday. The losers held less than a 2-to-1 lead before the announcement.

"The Agnew announcement just served as a catalyst," said Ralph Acampora of Harris, Upham & Co., explaining, "We were looking for some kind of a downward movement because the market in the last few weeks has moved far ahead of itself."

In other market news, IBM resumed trading Wednesday afternoon at 288½, but by closing was at 274, still 12¼ points higher than its last trade at the close Monday. Telex closed down 1⅛ at 5, while Telex warrants on the American Stock Exchange were down ⅞ at 2½.

There had been no trading in Telex and IBM since Monday's close on Tuesday, the U.S. District Court judge who had ordered IBM to pay Telex $352.5 million in antitrust damages, called for reconsideration of the award, saying he had made substantial errors in the computations.

On Wednesday, IBM trading was delayed again until the announcement of its third-quarter profits — $2.81 a share compared with $2.21 for the same period a year ago.

Analysts noted the judge's order Tuesday pertained only to the amount of damages assessed against IBM. Bausch & Lomb, up 1¼ at 49, was the Big Board volume leader for the third consecutive day in strong gains. It announced Monday that demand for its soft contact lenses was running far ahead of present production capacity. Analysts said the stock had become an institutional favorite.

Exxon Corp., No. 2 in trading, was down ⅜ at 90, losing ground for the third day, along with some other international oils as investors continued to worry about the Mideast situation. Texaco was down ½ at 31¼.

Gourmet Bears Said To Prefer Cat Food, Jam

Lewiston, Calif. (AP) — Biologist Tim Burton says California brown bears prefer a mixture of strawberry jam and cat food to honey.

Burton, 28, has been trapping bears in the rugged Trinity Mountains of Northern California for two years as part of a study for the State Fish and Game Department.

He experimented with several types of bait, but settled on the cat food and jam because it seemed to be "the gourmet favorite of bears."

One old bear liked it so much she kept coming back for more. "We caught her seven times," Burton said.

AFL-CIO Objects To Pension Bill

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The AFL-CIO objected Wednesday to a Senate-approved pension reform bill now before the House of Representatives, saying it will cause more harm than good.

"After further analysis, we realize this isn't pension reform," an AFL-CIO spokesman said. "This could mean the destruction of the pension system."

The measure calls for mandatory vesting of earned retirement benefits, a federal insurance system to guarantee payment of benefits and rules intended to improve administration of the pension system.

The 17 unions making up the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department adopted a resolution opposing the bill at their convention here this week. They objected to a termination insurance provision, arguing it would boost significantly the cost of multi-employer plans common in the construction industry.

Episcopal Bishops Vote To Change Confirmation

(c) Washington Star-News

Louisville, Ky. — The bishops of the Episcopal Church have voted to alter the church's practice regarding the 400-year-old sacrament of confirmation — a ceremony in which a bishop prays that a church member will be "strengthened for Christian service by God's Holy Spirit."

Confirmation has been the means by which an individual became a full member of the Episcopal Church. As recently as three years ago a Christian was not permitted to take communion in the Episcopal Church until after confirmation. This practice had been followed for some 400 years.

The bishops approved an entire new rite for trial use. It makes confirmation voluntary rather than mandatory as a prerequisite for admission to holy communion. Confirmation also may be repeated.

Under the old rite, Christians confirmed in the Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox Churches were "received" into the Episocpal Church instead of being reconfirmed since their rites were understood to mean essentially the same thing.

Under the new trial use, baptism alone will be regarded as "full initiation" into the life of the church.

Unlike the past, no new spiritual gifts or graces are considered to be imparted at confirmation. Confirmation thus becomes merely a time of Christian commitment.

In another action the laymen, priests and deacons which make up the House of Deputies endorsed the bishops' action on liberalizing the marriage canons, but refused to go along with the bishops' retention of the excommunication provisos of the current canons.

The clergymen and laymen, by a margin of 4 to 1, asked that the bishops reconsider excommunication. They want no penalty, namely exclusion from communion and other sacraments of the church, for those who remarry in noncomplaince with the church's laws regarding remarriage after a divorce.

Although the canons, as proposed, lessen the cause for excommunication, there is strong feeling the penalty should not remain at all.

Manor Occupancy Level To Receive More Study

The Lancaster Manor Advisory Board Wednesday agreed to study for another month the occupancy level for the county-operated nursing facility before establishing a n number of beds which may be kept in reserve.

Administrator Jerry Gibson and some members of the board and County Board Chairman Robert Colin expressed differing opinions on whether the nursing facility should be kept at full occupancy or whether some beds should be kept in reserve.

It was noted that there are presently 17 empty beds at the Manor, but Gibson pointed out that there had been several deaths during September and October and that the number would have been considerably less had it not been for the large death rate.

He contended that with the winter months approaching it is necessary to have extra beds to take care of emergencies.

Commissioner Colin said he personally felt that the county facility should operate at 100% occupancy.

Other board members indicated that they felt that perhaps there should be a reserve of as many as 10 beds but not as many as 24 as suggested by Gibson.

Hiram Scott Owners Make New Gift Offer

Scottsbluff (AP) — A new offer to give the Hiram Scott College campus to the University of Nebraska Board of Regents was made Wednesday by its Scottsbluff owner.

The Payroll Development Corp. of the Scottsbluff-Gering United Chambers of Commerce voted to offer the property to the regents for any use they want.

Part of the gift offer, however, is that the regents also accept transfer of the library-science building from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Hiram Scott property was previously offered with the provision that the facility be used only for higher education. This condition is not included in the new offer.

The latest offer was relayed Wednesday to Dr. Robert Koefoot of Grand Island, a member of the Board of Regents.

Dr. Koefoot indicated he would try to work the latest offer into the regents' Friday meeting agenda in Lincoln.

He said a regents' decision will be requested first on the report by Gov. J. J. Exon's committee to investigate possible uses for the Hiram Scott facility.

The governor's committee recently voted 7-3 to turn down the Hiram Scott campus offer. But the regents are not bound by the committee's recommendation. They voted earlier to inform the committee they wanted the Scottsbluff property.

Action on the Exon committee report is expected to be accompanied by a decision on transfer of the HEW property.

The Hiram Scott College land offered as a gift is valued at $159,000 by the Scotts Bluff County assessor's office with an assessed value of $55,650. Taxes have been paid on the property for this year and are about $4,000 annually.

COME TO US LAST

First, go to other new homes listed in the paper today. We don't mind. Then come to us. When it comes to new homes Scott/Jones has a lot to offer.
You'll see our signs on many new homes. Look in Huntington, south on 84th in the country, Trendwood, Colonial Hills or where ever you might like to build.
Look around at other houses then call us. Some people think that's crazy — but we happen to think it is good business.

Nearing completion

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 10-11
